SENATE HEARS STONE MAKE DEFENSE

Coolidge Choice for Bench Takes Stand to Defend Judicial Record

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Attorney-General Harlan F. Stone, named to the supreme court by President Coolidge, took the witness stand in his own defense today before the Senate judiciary committee to defend his professional record against senatorial criticism.

Stone appeared first at a secret session to explain his former legal activities for J. Pierpont Morgan and his reported intention as attorney-general to reindict Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana. Opposition to these two phases of Stone's legal record has blocked confirmation of his appointment to the supreme court.

Stone revealed that the indictment which he would seek against Senator Wheeler involved a "conspiracy to defraud the United States of its oil lands." He said that it was a new case and not a repetition of the Montana indictment against Wheeler.

RADIO SET FOR EACH FIRE HOUSE IS GOAL

Contributor Suggests Happiness and Joy For All Men Who Await Duty's Call During Lonesome Hours

Happiness and joy in every fire station in Glendale! This is the goal set by The Glendale Evening News in an effort to secure sufficient funds to buy four radio receiving sets for the four fire stations in the city, in accordance with the suggestion made today by one of the donors to the fund.

W. L. Twining, president of the Glendale Realty board, and member of the realty firm of Twining & Myers, 108 West Broadway, suggests a radio set for every station, in the following letter, sent to A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale Evening News:

"We are enclosing you check for $10 donation to the radio fund for fire department employes.

"We are very pleased to make this contribution, and feel that every firehouse in the city should have a radio, and we know that the boys, on the salaries they are getting, are not in a financial position to properly equip their houses.

"We think the firemen and policemen are the most underpaid employes of any department of our city. We all forget them only in case of need, but when a fire breaks out, or a burglar breaks in, we all immediately 'holler' good and loud for help, and we get immediate assistance.

"We hope the fund will be large enough so that every house can be supplied with a radio."

Others Aid Fund

Mrs. Eva N. Anderson, in sending her check for $5, says:

"Enclosed please find check for radio fund. I wish it were more. Wonder some one had not thought of the real pleasure it will give the boys long ago."

"This $1 is one-half of the limerick prize which you sent me," writes Mrs. T. R. Graham. "Here's hoping it may help the 'fire laddies' enjoy life more."

George Melvin of 432 West Ivy street makes an appeal for everybody to help, in his letter, which follows:

"Enclosed find my check for $5 as my contribution to the Glendale firemen's radio fund. Let's go, folks, make it a good one."

Glendalians who wish to contribute to the fund and help to shorten the long hours of waiting for duty's call at the four fire stations in the city by providing a radio receiving set for each station, will find a subscription list at the office of The Glendale Evening News, 139 South Brand boulevard, or they can use the coupon which appears daily in this paper.

WHEAT JUMPS TO NEW HIGH PRICE

May Futures Bring $2.05 on Chicago Close; Gain Is Noted at Winnipeg

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
For International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Never was there such a wheat market! May wheat sold on the Chicago board of trade today at $2.05⅞. It closed at $2.05. All the wheat futures and the rye futures made new highs for the crops. Corn was very strong. Oats also advanced. How much higher wheat may go, no one was disposed to attempt to forecast. There is no telling.

In comparison with the wheat market at Winnipeg today, the Chicago market was almost tame. There May wheat closed at $2.19⅞, a gain of 8⅛ cents. News from all over the world was more bullish than ever. Cash wheat was very strong. No. 2 red wheat sold in the Chicago cash market at $2.20½, 16 cents over the May future.

Right at the tap of the opening gong, May wheat sold at $2. The range of fluctuations at the start was from that price down to $1.99½. The latter was the bottom price for the day.

Climb Is Steady

From then throughout the session, with only occasional and minor setbacks, wheat walked right up. There was no such rush of selling at around the $2 price as had been expected in some quarters. There was large profit-taking, and pit traders took chances on the short side. But those who converted paper profit into real ones were regretting their haste in selling out a few moments later and those who sold short were scrambling to buy their wheat back.

Corn also was very strong. Shorts in that market had apparently been caught, but they continued to fight the market in the face of the great strength in wheat and rye, despite the steady advance in corn itself.

At no time during the entire session did any of the markets show evidences of real weakness, and coming into the last hour of the session as wheat constantly climbed into new high ground.

DIPHTHERIA IS RAGING WITH REMEDIES LACKING

Public Health Service Will Rush Antitoxin Units to Alaskan City

SEATTLE, Jan. 28.—In the grip of a serious diphtheria epidemic and practically without means of combatting it, Nome, Alaska, was threatened with extinction today, while the United States public health service was exerting every effort to stave off a general disaster.

Acting on instructions from Surgeon-General Hugh Cumming, Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of the public health service in this district, completed arrangements today to rush 1,000,000 antitoxin units to Seward, aboard the steamship Alameda, which sails from Seattle Saturday.

An airplane is expected to be used to transport the serums from Fairbanks to Nome, a distance of approximately 600 miles.

Dr. Magruder admitted that the situation would be highly alarming if the plane could not be charted, as dog teams would take at least a month to make the long run, and, in the meantime, the anti-toxin would be sure to freeze with a resultant danger of the containers breaking.

"As soon the present small supply of anti-toxin gives out," Dr. Magruder explained, "Nome will have to depend on primitive methods for combating the epidemic. This naturally would mean a very high mortality rate."

Couple's Persistence Finally Wins Wedding

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28.—Appearing before a Sacramento justice of the peace, Josie M. Carley of Modesto and Clarence A. Leighton of Sonora, who had secured a marriage license in Marysville, Yuba county, found they could not be married under a permit issued in another county. The couple then hastened to Wheatland, Yuba county, where the minister they approached drew the line at officiating at the marriage ceremony because the prospective bride had secured a divorce. The Wheatland justice of the peace declined to preside at the solemnization because he had never officiated in such ceremonies. Finally, the two harassed young people returned to Marysville, where they secured the license, and Justice Herzog tied the knot.

CONEY ISLAND NOW WINTER RESORT

Mantle of Snow on Beach Draws Crowds Daily To Noted Place

By EDNA MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Sheets of ice and icicles, and great open stretches of snow where the sandy beach used to be, have turned Coney Island, New York's famous summer resort, into one of the most popular winter resorts this side of Palm Beach. Undeterred by cutting winds that savored of a snow storm soon to come, or by the bleak coldness of the roller coasters and other concessions that lure them in summer, more than 40,000 pleasure seekers played about the island Sunday.

Forty persons sought their fun in the bouncing waves, stopping to urge the passing crowds to join them as they poked with warm and glowing toes among the snow drifts on the shore. The rest of the 40,000 paraded on the board walk, where workmen with shovels were busily clearing away snow and pouring salt and cinders on icy places.

Along the board walk a few concessioners, with overcoats wrapped tight about their necks and fur caps pulled low, barked the worth of their hot dogs. A throng of fur-coated men stopped to place skee ball or have their weight guessed, or take a shot at the hundred-odd trinkets that wait in the shooting gallery to attract the skill of the passerby. On the beach a hundred children took turn riding the wee ponies that romp about the heated sands in summer.

Snow Everywhere

Snow covers the minarets and spires, the Ferris' wheels and merry-go-rounds. Long icicles decorate the tracks of the roller coasters. Except for the board walk promenades, the children and bathers, and the enterprising concessioners. Coney Island is forlorn. The streets of the city itself are almost deserted. Luna Park is closed. Its shoot-the-chutes are barren and cold, inviting only the attention of skiers—to whom they are barred.

There are no barkers urging visitors to go to see the fat lady, the sword swallower and the other freaks. The swings and caroussels are forgotten. The merry-go-round horses stand covered with dirty canvases where they were stopped last fall. The carts of "the whip" and "the caterpillar" which flip about gaily in the warm months of the year, are huddled in the corners of their halls as though trying to keep warm.

The center of interest for the promenaders is the little group of bathers who disported themselves in bare feet and abbreviated bathing suits as though it were July. These hardy ones, members of the Iceberg Athletic club, the writer learned—go each Sunday to answer a roll call and are dropped for non-attendance.

Membership Grows

"We started in 1919 with only six," Geo. O'Connor, the president said. "Others saw us, envied our fun and our ranks increase almost each week. We play beach ball, run races and then plunge in. It's great!"

Each Sunday night, a group of those who "have to have their fishing to be happy" gather on Steeplechase pier to try their luck and consume enough hot dogs, doughnuts and coffee to keep the vender living comfortably for a week.

Frequently as many as 100,000 visitors journey to Coney Island on a winter's Sunday. A large proportion are New Yorkers, who can find no way of spending Sunday comparable to a trip to Coney. The others are visitors in the big city, who may never get to Coney in the summer, and want to be sure to get a good look at it.

TRAIN SCHEDULE ASKED RETURNED

Chamber of Commerce Urge Return to 15-Minute Runs In City

Immediate efforts to have the Pacific Electric and the Glendale-Montrose railway return to normal schedule will be taken by the Chamber of Commerce. At the time power-saving was ordered by the state power administrator last summer the schedules of both electric lines in Glendale were cut as an economy measure.

Now that the shortage of electricity is past, return to the old schedule on the Pacific Electric line between Glendale and Los Angeles and on all cars operated by the Glendale-Montrose lines will be sought. Pacific Electric trains are now running on a twenty-minute schedule, as compared to every fifteen minutes, before the power shortage. A difference of ten minutes between cars has been the result of power-saving on the Glendale-Montrose line.

Fare Reduction

The Chamber of Commerce will at the same time continue its efforts to have the Glendale-Los Angeles fares over the Pacific Electric reduced. Upon the suggestion of W. A. Horn an effort to have the Pacific Electric cars that run through to Burbank placarded "Burbank via Glendale" instead of merely "Burbank" will also be made by the chamber.

In a letter to the board of directors of the chamber, P. L. Hatch, manager of the Glendale-Montrose railway, pointed out that his road lost money every month during 1924 on its Glendale-Los Angeles run and urged that the Chamber of Commerce use its influence to encourage patronage of the line.

LOS ANGELES

For Southland News Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—More than 225 miles of roads and nearly 457 miles of trails were constructed within or adjacent to the seventeen national forests of California during the last year, according to a report by the forestry office here today. In addition maintenance work was performed on 963 miles of roads and 3617 miles of trails. Major road prospects were built in co-operation with the bureau of public roads. Including the construction work completed within the last year the total mileage of national forest roads in the California district totalled 535 and the total mileage of trails 1642. A total of $1,396,146 was expended on national forest road and trail work in California by the forest service during the last year.

The cornerstone was laid for the new $6,000,000 hall of justice at Temple street and North Broadway. Federal, state, county and township judges, city and county officials and nearly 500 private citizens attended the brief ceremonies.

Out of thirty-four deaths reported in Los Angeles for the week end, only four were less than 30 years of age. Six were in their 80's, still more in the 70's and 60's, and but few in the 30's.

Captain Charles S. McClary, commander of the police juvenile bureau, reported today that during the last six months 837 boys and girls were reported missing and 563 were found by the authorities. Solution of the problem of finding the ones who remain missing, McClary believes, lies in the reorganization of the missing persons bureau of the crime prevention division under his command.

WORLD COURT URGE OF CLUB MEMBERS

Universal Peace Movement Endorsed; School Bonds Are Discussed

In accord with the nation-wide movement among American club women for universal peace, Tuesday Afternoon club members meeting yesterday afternoon at the clubhouse unanimously passed a resolution presented by Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, chairman of international relations, favoring the participation of the United States in the permanent court of international justice, with the Harding-Hughes reservations.

Another matter of vital interest brought before the club women yesterday was the coming school bond election in Glendale. At the club luncheon Richardson D. White, superintendent of schools, spoke on the bonds, stating that the proposition concerning both the needs of the high school and elementary school systems "Can be backed up by facts." At the afternoon session James W. Everington addressed the club gathering, urging hearty endorsement and support of the bonds to provide development of both school systems.

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, club president, presided at the luncheon and again in the afternoon. At the luncheon speakers were Mrs. Herbert Carr, district chairman of literature, and Mrs. W. F. Stevens, district chairman of conservation. Both gave interesting talks on work under their departments. Honoring Mrs. Carr there were thirty-six members of the literature department of the Hostess club, seated at special tables.

See Dream Pictures

Announcement of club guests showed that many states and cities were represented. There were present Mrs. A. W. Stevenson of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. Carrie Johnson of Parsons, Kan.; Mrs. John R. Boyd, Michigan City, Ind.; one guest from Findlay, Ohio; and a group of four from Los Angeles. Among former members welcomed was Mrs. J. E. Sargent of Upland, and Mrs. Barnes.

As the program feature of the afternoon Branson De Cou presented his "Dream Pictures Around the World," with musical accompaniment by Knabe Ampico and Brunswick phonograph, furnished by the Fitzgerald Music Co. He was introduced by Walter David, impresario. In his travels Mr. De Cou has taken some beautiful pictures, wonderfully colored, with which he illustrates his informal travel talks.

She predicts that it will continue to bloom until the first of April.

The comedy scenes throughout are veritable riots—guaranteed to keep the audience laughing nine minutes out of ten.

SCHOOL BOARD ASKED SHARE FOR LIGHT

Committee Wants Payment For Work In Front of Colorado Property

A committee headed by Ralph W. Meeker appeared before the Glendale city Board of Education last night with the request that the board pay for installation of ornamental street lights on its Colorado school frontage. Peter Diederich, superintendent of plant and production, was present to urge that the board pay its share of the cost of these lights. The committee was informed that funds for this purpose are provided in the $1,200,000 which the board will ask at the special school bond election of February 17, and that no action can be taken until after that date. The meeting was held at the offices of the Board of Education, 107½ South Brand boulevard, Mrs. A. A. Barton, president, presiding.

On hearing a letter read from the Glendale Clearing House association, signed by R. F. Kitterman, secretary, stating that the association did not feel able to take up the thrift plan outlined by B. M. Donaldson of the School Savings of America, the board voted to drop the plan. Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, was authorized to address a reply to Mr. Kitterman, stating that the board will be glad to consider another thrift plan at some future time.

The board authorized John T. Cate, business manager, to attend the national convention of Public School Business Managers, to be held at Kansas City, May 19 to 22. Mr. Cate reported that the changes authorized at the Wilson Intermediate and Acacia schools, in order to provide more classroom space, have been completed.

The board approved a forthcoming W. C. T. U. contest outlined by Mr. White, to comprise essays and posters submitted by school children. Miss Elsa Brenneman, music supervisor, came before the board with a plan for offering instruction in orchestra. It was voted to hold this over until next year. Miss Brenneman was authorized to attend the State Music conference at Pomona, February 26 to 28.

Permission was granted John Steven McGroarty to announce in the city schools a special children's matinee of the Mission Play at San Gabriel, on Saturday, February 7. The board reaffirmed the policy of insisting that films be changed outside the rooms, when motion programs are shown at the city schools. It was voted to lay a lawn on the Sycamore Canyon road frontage at the Broadway school. The resignation of Miss Helen Reynolds of the Glendale Intermediate school was accepted. She leaves to accept a position with the Los Angeles city schools. Mr. White will appoint her successor.

MULTIPLE LISTING RULES FOR REALTY

Under New Service Property Must Be Appraised by Competent Persons

Under the new multiple listing service now in operation by the Glendale Realty board, all properties so listed must first be appraised by three competent realtors, J. I. Wernette, chairman of the committee in charge of this department, said today.

The operation of the system is simple. Upon listing in any office of the board, under this system, each member of the board gets a card, sent out from headquarters in the Security building. On receipt of this card each member goes in person and looks over the property, to become thoroughly acquainted with its desirability. He is then in a position to give prospective buyers all the facts at first hand, Mr. Wernette pointed out.

Properties accepted for this new multiple listing service are grouped into display advertisements, appearing in The Glendale Evening News, under the imprint of the Glendale Realty board. As this board is a member of the national and state real estate associations, buyers and sellers are both assured of adequate protection.

The personnel of the Glendale Realty board committee in charge of multiple listing comprises: J. I. Wernette, chairman; Councilman S. S. Gilhuly, E. M. Ingledue, E. G. Warren and Max Woods.

FOILS BOMB ATTACK ON TORCHIA'S HOME

Elmer Fitz, Glendale Boy, Is Beaten By Two Men Surprised At House; Plot To Blow Up Family, Is Police Theory

Bombers who sought the life of Ernest M. Torchia, prominent Glendale and Los Angeles attorney, by sending him a "Christmas bomb," failed in an attempt to dynamite the Torchia home in Casa Verdugo last night when Elmer Fitz, 19 years old, and living at 1322 North Louise street, interrupted the bombers at work, and was then beaten into unconsciousness.

Glendale police and deputy sheriffs are certain the two men encountered by young Fitz were bent on blowing up the Torchia home, following an investigation lasting throughout most of the night. A description of the bombers was given by the boy and may lead to the arrest of those who sent the deadly "Christmas bomb" to Torchia.

Tells of Experiences

Badly bruised about the head and neck and nursing a sprained hand, the results of his encounter with the two men last night, Fitz gave the following account of his experiences to The Glendale Evening News:

"I left my home at 1322 North Louise street at about 7:15 o'clock to visit Ernest Pomeroy at 407 Ross street. As I passed the Torchia home, I noticed a man sneaking along the north side of the house. I supposed it was Patrolman Goss, who usually makes an inspection tour of the vicinity about that hour. I went in through the front gate to speak to him, but was able to locate no one. As I turned to go out of the yard, I heard some one behind me. Turning, I saw a man about six feet in height weighing about 200 pounds. He was rushing in my direction and held a small box in his right hand. I could see that the box was about four by six inches in dimensions and resembled very much time-bombs I have seen at police headquarters.

Knocks Down Suspect

"As the man reached me, I swung and knocked him down with one blow. I jumped on him and was smashing away at his head when a second man, smaller in stature, approached from behind. He hit me once on the top of the head with what seemed to be a blackjack. As I turned to defend myself, he administered a second blow across the back of my neck, and I was out."

Young Fitz said as he struck the first man the latter dropped the box which he carried on the ground. Police searched for this box in the belief that it was a time bomb designed to blow up the Torchia home. Apparently the bombers were not aware that Mrs. Torchia and her daughter, fearing further attempts on their lives, had left their Casa Verdugo home shortly after the Christmas bombing, police said.

Long, Black Hair

Fitz said he was positive the larger of the two men was either a Mexican or an Italian. He said, as he struck the man, his hat fell off, disclosing long, black hair. Both men cursed him vigorously, Fitz said, and he recognized a decided foreign accent in the voice of the larger man. He was not able to get as good a description of the smaller of the two bombers, he said.

"When I came to, presumably ten or fifteen minutes after the attack, both men were gone. I made my way to the Pomeroy home, where I first told my story. The police were called immediately."

Examination of Fitz by Dr. L. L. Craven showed he had received two severe blows, one on the head and the other on the back of the neck. This corroberated Fitz' statement that he was struck twice. Police believe the bombers used a soft or blunt instrument, as the victim's head was not cut.

Conduct Inquiry

The trail of the bombers was taken up by Lieutenant W. J. Royle, Sergeants H. J. Lawrentzen and C. P. Blake and Officer R. Welshans of the Glendale police department, who responded to the first call. After completing a preliminary investigation, they turned the case over to Deputy Sheriffs Wright, Coulter and Christensen of the homicide squad. The sheriff's office continued its investigation from a number of angles, both here in Glendale and in Los Angeles, today, confident that, with additional light on the bombing outrage furnished by this latest attempt upon the lives of members of the Torchia family, they will be able to apprehend the bombers.

Family Not Home

Some weeks ago members of Torchia family were warned that an attempt would be made to blow up their residence, and they promptly left for a house elsewhere. The Torchia residence was unoccupied last night.

Torchia is still a patient at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital, recovering from serious injuries received Christmas morning, when a bomb, concealed in a Christmas package exploded in his hands at his home, 1329 Campbell street. Reports from the hospital this morning stated that Mr. Torchia is recovering satisfactorily. While he is not yet able to leave his bed, he is able to be moved onto the porch every day to enjoy the sunshine and fresh air. Plans are being made for him to leave the hospital shortly.

JOINT CHAMBERS MEET IN BURBANK

Two Hundred Local Members Join Valley Dinner; Weller Speaks

Two hundred Chamber of Commerce representatives and their wives attended the monthly dinner of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley, held at the Benmar Hills club, Burbank, last night. A dozen Glendalians, including President D. H. Smith and Directors George Lyons, Harry G. MacBain, Fred Deal, George Karr and W. L. Truitt of the Chamber of Commerce, were in attendance.

Frank C. Weller, assemblyman from Glendale, told the chamber delegates that all chance of gaining reapportionment at this time has been blasted. The time to have effected reapportionment of the state, he said, was immediately after the last census. The opportunity was allowed to slip by then, he said, and now it is virtually impossible to overcome the opposition. Mr. Weller also opposed increased automobile and gasoline taxation unless Los Angeles county is given its just proportion of the revenue.

Highway Approval

Supervisor Wright who returned recently from the convention of supervisors at Sacramento, spoke. He said Southern representatives urged completion of all main highways in Southern California at the meeting.

The main speaker was Dr. James Hoffman Batten of Pomona college, who talked on "Short Cuts and Short Circuits." Talks also were given by A. E. Dufur, president of the Burbank Chamber of Commerce, and President Leo B. Lesperance of the associated body. Vocal numbers by Robert O. Ritter and violin solos by Miss Christine Krum, accompanied by Miss Frances Colburn, completed the program. The meeting was under the auspices of manufacturers of the valley, who distributed samples of all articles produced in San Fernando cities.

C. C. to Seek Higher Rate In City Census

Efforts to have Glendale's rating in the census columns changed in order to bring this city's population up to date will be made by the Chamber of Commerce. In the official census lists Glendale is rated as a city with 13,000 population which was the case in 1920 when the last census was taken. This city may follow Burbank in having an official census taken by the County Supervisors in order to get the figures officially changed on Uncle Sam's lists. Director George Karr will investigate the matter farther.

Valley Manufacturers To Be Guests Feb. 19

Manufacturers of the San Fernando valley who will be guests of the Greater Glendale Luncheon club on February 19, will dine at the Tropico Potteries and will later be shown through the factory under the direction of officials of the concern. Plans to have the manufacturers see Glendale's biggest industrial plant are being worked out by Director George Karr of the Chamber of Commerce and George F. Orgibet, chairman of the luncheon club.

CONGRESS HAS LITTLE TIME TO FINISH

Less Than Six Weeks Left For Present Session; Debates Featured

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Within six weeks the present session of Congress will come to an end. Judging by the rate of legislative speed and time taken for debate in the past, it is not too early to predict that scarcely anything of major importance outside of the regular appropriation bills will get through before congress automatically expires on the fourth of March.

While there is often a last minute rally in which measures are jammed through without much debate, the opportunity of a minority to block almost anything is conceded. So just now there are various maneuvers apparent which merely seek to obstruct and delay.

One of the significant phases of the legislative situation is the almost complete absence of talk about further tax revision. Even the repeal of the much discussed provision of the present revenue law whereby income tax payments are made available to public inspection is not being agitated. This is due partly to the fact that sentiment in congress has not yet crystallized on this issue and partly to the desire of the Coolidge administration itself not to reopen the present revenue law to amendment.

Coolidge Message

Most of recommendations which President Coolidge made in his last message to Congress will not be carried at this session of Congress. This is no longer doubted. The executive has, however, declined to say that he considers any proposal he made as serious enough to require the summoning of an extra session after March 4. His strategy has been to stimulate, if possible, the present Congress to accomplish as much as it could by March 4, leaving undetermined whether there would be an extra session before next December. Mr. Coolidge has also become convinced that business men would prefer that Congress give the country a legislative rest. He intends to put that policy into effect for a while at least after March 4.

The consensus of opinion, on the other hand, is that Mr. Coolidge will find that by September 1 there has been enough rest to satisfy many of the elements clamoring for such a do-nothing policy and that the pressure to get action on tax reform, agricultural relief, and problems growing out of the war debt negotiations with Europe will again become acute. The summoning of an extra session therefore for the autumn months may be looked for even though an announcement to that effect might be delayed until late in the summer.

Campaign Interfered

Although last year was exceptional in that the presidential campaign occupied the minds of almost everybody in the congressional world, and little could have been accomplished anyhow if there had been a session, the vacation from June to December was one of the longest which the country has experienced in legislation in a decade. Much was forgiven on the ground that the political campaign would have interfered with congressional action. No such excuse can be offered after

Electric Train Returns 6,803 Lost Articles

"Losers weepers, finders keepers" is not the code of Pacific Electric trainmen, a fact verified by the large percentage of return of articles lost on cars in a report of last year just made public.

Exactly 8045 persons lost articles, ranging from angleworms to Bibles, on Pacific Electric cars last year and failed to retrieve them simply because they did not apply at the department where all articles found are kept, awaiting inquiries from the owners. A total of 6803 articles were returned to their owners last year and in many cases the articles returned were of considerable value. Several diamond rings and two purses containing more than $50 and many with more than $25 in contents found their way back to owners.

Records of the lost and found department show that more than 60 per cent of applicants effect the return of their property, which average is very high considering that the articles may have been lost elsewhere, or, if lost on cars, may have been picked up by other than trainmen.

All articles found on Pacific Electric cars are forwarded to the lost and found department, maintained at both the Hill street and Main street stations of the company in Los Angeles.

PILLING RESIGNS MERCHANT OFFICE

Secretary of Association Undecided on Future; Right Man Sought

Frank H. Pilling has tendered his resignation as secretary of the Glendale Merchants' association, to take effect February 1, and the board of directors has accepted it. This was admitted this morning by C. J. Hatz, president of the local credit body, who stated that while a dozen applications for the position are on file, the right man to succeed Mr. Pilling has not yet been found.

Interviewed this morning in the offices of the association at 150 South Brand boulevard, where he is still at his desk, Mr. Pilling stated that he is considering several moves and will make an announcement of his future plans in a day or so.

"My family and myself are much attached to Glendale and have no thought of leaving," he said. "We have been here four years, are property owners and have many friends here."

Mr. Pilling lives with his family at 1171 Justin avenue. He has been secretary of the Glendale Merchants' association since its inception in December, 1921. Prior to that he was for twelve years secretary to the Merchants' association at Everett, Wash., resigning that position to come to the Glendale work, Mr. Pilling was employed for seven years in the drug business, in Wisconsin, four years as a registered pharmacist.

Police Officers Meet In Monthly Conference

The regular monthly meeting of Glendale police department officers was held this afternoon in the council chamber at the City Hall, Chief John D. Fraser, presiding.

SCHOOL BONDS FAVORED BY CHAMBER

Commerce Body to Work for Adoption of $2,400,000 Issue at Election

The board of directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce went on record yesterday favoring the $2,400,000 school bond issues and pledging the support of the chamber to the bond campaign. This action followed addresses by W. E. Hewitt, former president of the chamber, Richardson D. White, city schools superintendent, and A. W. Tower, of the high school board. Members of the board gave permission to use their names in advertising material that will be issued in favor of the bonds.

Committee chairmen reported on recent activities at the meeting of directors. L. T. Rowley, chairman of the highways and bridges committee told the board of action taken at a meeting of communities at the Hollywood Athletic club, advocating bond issues of $1,200,000 for new bridges across the Los Angeles river at the south end of Glendale. He suggested that, as the bond campaign would be carried on strictly in the city of Los Angeles, Glendalians could aid in securing their passage by mailing post cards to all their voting friends in the larger city. A report on the executive board session of the Associated Chambers of the San Fernando valley was given by Director Fred Deal.

Flood Control

Percy J. Hayselden, chairman of the flood control committee told the board his committee is near to a solution of the flood control problems and urged that prejudices be laid aside and whole hearted co-operation be given the committee's efforts.

The Chamber of Commerce has taken up the matter of telephones in the Grand View district with City Manager Virgil B. Stone preparatory to having the request for a change in phone service there laid before the railroad commission. The residents of Grand View section have petitioned that their phones be placed on the Glendale exchange. They are now served from Burbank with a toll charge on all calls made to Glendale.

In his report as chairman of the transportation committee, W. T. Jefferson advocated that a bus line be established between the Southern Pacific depot in southern Glendale and the new Hotel Glendale at Broadway and Glendale avenue. He said his committee was working on lower Pacific Electric fares and on other matters assigned to it.

The Glendale chamber will cooperate with other chambers throughout the state in combating the effects of syndicated articles printed in many papers throughout the country that a tax was to be placed on all tourists who enter the state. A letter from the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce denying the truth of the article was read by Secretary Howard I. Wood.

An effort will be made to have the entrance to the Chamber of Commerce headquarters at 150 South Brand boulevard cleared so that there will be ample passage way. At present part of the space is occupied by a bootblack stand. William Gumbiner, owner of the building and Burton McGinnis, the agent, will be consulted.

The board of directors adjourned early in order to attend the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at Burbank last night. President D. H. Smith presided.

SUSPICION—
Makes a victim out of every one it touches.
Works its worst injuries on the one who holds it.
Imprisons us in a world of woe.
Would paint every picture in discord and falsehood.
Would turn the world into a madhouse.
Seems to have more than nine lives.
Blinds the eyes, stops the ears, and freezes the heart.

COURTESY GOOD PUBLICITY

There is almost sure to be a difference of opinion as to how any money that might be raised to advertise Glendale should be spent, but there is one sort of publicity that will cost us nothing and will still bring about the results we desire from advertising, which is increase in our population.

In spite of the propaganda of which we hear so much, launched for the purpose of curtailing westward migration, tourists, visitors and new residents are coming into California by the thousands. It may be that this adverse publicity will react upon those who would like to injure us. At least our enemies are keeping the name of California before the people.

No matter how widely traveled a person may be, he never forgets a place where he has been especially well treated, and since a great many of these newcomers to California will, of their own accord, visit Glendale, it behooves us to treat them well. Every citizen should appoint himself a member of the Welcome-to-Glendale club, the object of which should be to show courtesy and attention to strangers. A little courtesy on your part may be the means of winning a friend for Glendale, and the reverse is also true.

This idea could be carried out still further if there were some way of inviting all the tourists who come to Los Angeles to visit Glendale. Possibly this could be accomplished through the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Then some means would have to be provided to show them courtesies when they came.

Glendale has a number of suitable and appropriate titles, such as a city of homes, a clean city, the fastest growing city and the Jewel city. If in addition to these we could earn the title of "the friendly city" it would be excellent publicity for Glendale.

A UNITED CALIFORNIA

Unselfishness is a virtue and it pays money returns, too. An exchange says that all advertising of California, even when local in its nature as to the thing or place exploited, is of benefit to the whole state and should be encouraged by the people of all sections, and in this connection attention is called to the proposed bridge across the Golden Gate at San Francisco which is to cost $21,000,000 and consume five years in the building. The Brooklyn bridge, which has been a national wonder, is a puny affair compared to this San Francisco bridge. We of the south should not be jealous or indifferent about this bridge, but should make it a matter of state pride, and its benefit to the entire state should be recognized.

The northern end of the state benefits from the tourist travel and immigration which results from advertising Southern California. And the southern part of the state likewise profits from propaganda which draws people to the northern part of the state. Our fine highways and railroads make travel from north to south easy and rapid. Co-operation between the north and the south is beneficial to both.

Speaking of a closer union between the north and south of California, the Argonaut says that the airplane service soon to be established between San Francisco and Los Angeles gives promise of a closer connection between the two cities. "When it is possible to fly from Los Angeles to San Francisco in three or four hours there will cease to be any recognition of division between the north and the south, for the Tehachapi then will represent a line that literally has disappeared in thin air."

TRIBUTE TO PRESIDENT

President Coolidge and the administration are in for considerable lambasting on the part of Col. Harvey's Washington Post and other newspapers because, it is claimed, the Paris settlement concerning the allocation of payments expected from Germany through the working of the Dawes plan definitely commits the United States to participation in European politics.

While a certain section of the press of the country is critical of the administration, read the following tribute from the San Jose News, a paper which consistently fought the election of Coolidge and promised to carry California for La Follette:

"President Coolidge may not be the most brilliant man in the world, or even in the United States, but many of his actions of late indicate that he is such a good politician that he comes mighty near being a statesman. He is not rubbing in his defeat of his enemies, he is steadfast in trying to conciliate the left wing of his party; and he seems to be genuinely consistent in trying to carry out his policy of economy, pursuing it to such an extent that he, single-handed, faced and subdued the jingo gang which demanded more money, more guns, more war possibilities in the conduct of the navy. Mr. Coolidge is transforming the Republican party from a plunderbund to a decent stand-pat political organization."

MINING IN CALIFORNIA

Mining was California's first industry, the occupation that turned the eyes of the world upon this state. But agriculture has for a good many years taken its place as our chief industry, and now those interested in mining are eager to get that industry upon a more substantial and remunerative basis again. To this end a conference was held in San Francisco recently at which there were present mining engineers, operators, managers and others. A permanent organization was effected and resolutions passed providing for a state-wide clearing house of the producers, distributors and users of mineral products under the leadership of the Industrial department of the California Development Association, and with the co-operation of Trade organizations, Chambers of Commerce and all other interested agencies. An economic survey of the mining industry of California is to be undertaken with the thought of developing new markets and obtaining facts regarding taxation and tariff on mineral products. Also provision was made for a general publicity program in the interest of the mining industry as aid in marketing and encouraging new payrolls in the state. California will be glad to see the mining industry come back.

Another puzzle is the insane desire on the part of man to beat the fast express.

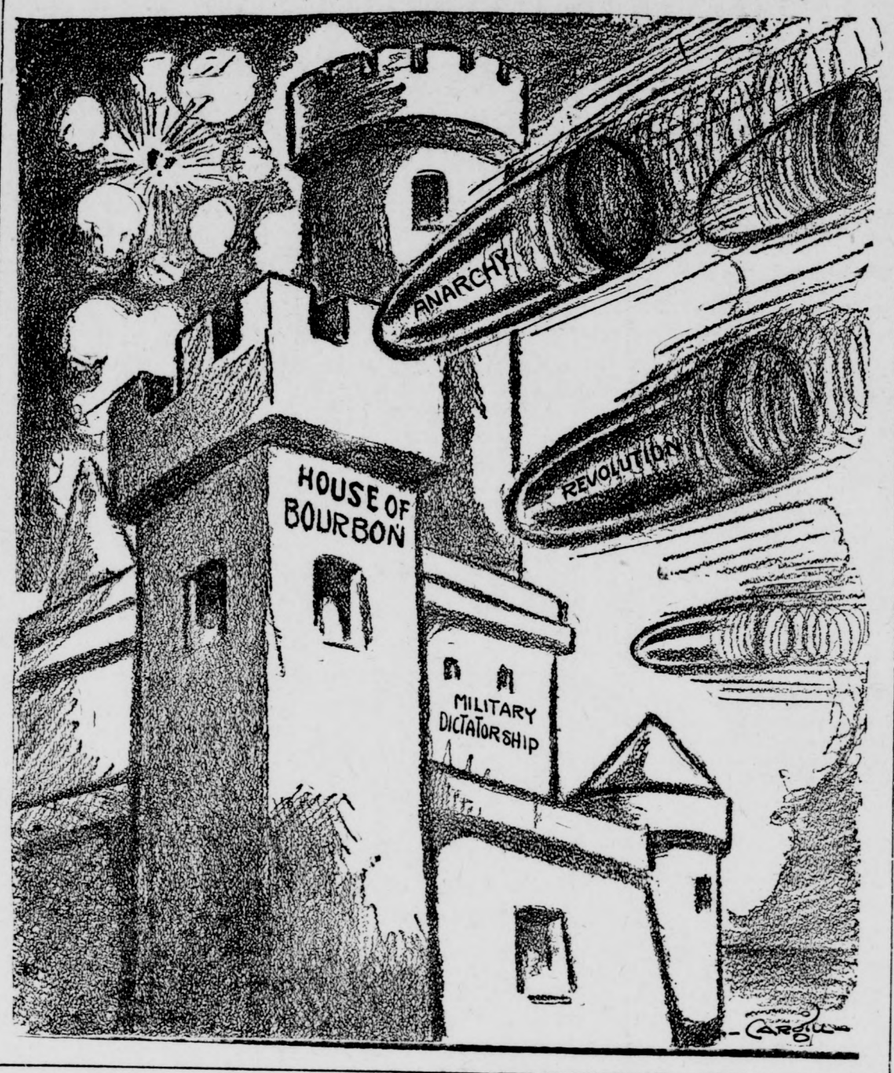
CASTLES IN SPAIN



The Back-Log of Prosperity

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Mr. William E. Knox, president of Bowery Savings Bank of New York, and also president of the American Bankers' association, delivered an address the other day in Cleveland before the Bankers' club.

He called the savings of the people the Back-Log of Prosperity.

There is no doubt of his correctness. If our prosperity rested upon the whim of the few it would be flickering. Since it rests upon the motion of the public it argues continued success.

Savings not only means dollars in the banks. It means an increase of the capital which is to be devoted toward the development of the country. This is because the money in the banks is immediately applied by the bankers for the purpose of securities in railroad and other industrial developments.

The fact that our savings have increased from $11,600,000,000 to $21,000,000,000 means the small savings of many millions of people, instead of being fooled away in some manner of immediate consumption, are massed together and applied to the upbuilding of our industrial equipment.

"These tremendous savings figures," he said, "indicate sound habits of thought and practice on the part of millions of people. It is one of the most promising elements in the situation today. It means that we not only have the resources for prosperity, but also the common sense to make good use of them."

The strength of a country is indicated in two ways. First, by the valor and health of its people, and, second, by the amount of resources that they have piled up behind them.

When it comes to a case of war, the people must not only be willing to fight, but they must have capital enough to enable them to get something to fight with.

The pocketbook is a very important element of national defense.

Horoscope

Venus, Mercury and Uranus are all in benefic aspect today, according to astrology. Saturn is adverse.

This is one of the rarely fortunate wedding days, making for long life, success and lasting love.

Again the stars are under a sway that promises unprecedented interest in the stage. It is a particularly lucky sign under which to sign contracts with managers.

Trade in jewels, art objects and the luxuries of life should be uncommonly good while this configuration lasts.

Much entertainment of the highest and gayest type will continue through the winter in which there will be extremes of human experience, adversity contrasted with prosperity.

According to ancient lore there should much return in love and admiration come to those who bestow flowers while this direction of the stars prevails.

There is a sign that promises satisfaction for all who cultivate new friendships, while this planetary government lasts.

Mercury is in a place that promises success to those who desire to collect money and it is forecast that financial conditions will enable many to pay their debts.

Confectioners who have been profiting much will continue to enjoy large returns, for the eating of sweets will be even more general than formerly.

This is said to be an auspicious date for dancing and they who entertain at a ball are assured of success in giving their guests pleasure.

Uranus is in an aspect conducive to intellectual effort of all sorts. Writers should make the best of the hours in this day.

Educational matters have the most favorable direction of the stars and they will be much in the public prints, since there will be increased demand for trained men and women.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that is favorable for the achievement of ambitions. Those who are employed may receive many favors.

Children born on this day probably will succeed in whatever they choose as their vocations. These subjects of Aquarius are usually determined and able to decide for themselves.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

Today's Poem

ON THE GRASSHOPPER AND CRICKET

The poetry of earth is never dead:
When all the birds are faint with the hot sun
And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead.
That is the grasshopper's—he takes the lead
In summer luxury—he has never done
With his delights; for, when tired out with fun,
He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed,
The poetry to earth is ceasing never:
On a lone winter evening, when the frost
Has wrought a silence, from the stove there shrills
The cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
And seems, to one in drowsiness half lost,
The grasshopper's among some grassy hills.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

In making his way through life, a man will find it useful to be ready and able to do two things; to look ahead and to overlook; the one will protect him from loss and injury, the other from disputes and squabbles.

Arthur Schopenhauer opined that no one who has to live among men should absolutely discard any person who has his due place in the order of nature, even though he is very wicked or contemptible or ridiculous.

He must accept him as an unalterable fact—unalterable, because the necessary outcome of an eternal, fundamental principle; and in bad cases he should remember the words of Mephistopheles: there must be fools and rogues in the world.

If he acts otherwise he will be committing an injustice; Biology has shown us that no one can alter his own peculiar individuality, his moral character, his intellectual capacity and his temperament.

So, if you have to live among men, you must allow every one the right to exist in accordance with the character he has, whatever it turns out to be: and all you should strive to do is to make use of this character in such a way as its kind and nature permit, rather than to hope for any alteration in it, or to condemn it offhand for what it is.

This is the true sense of the maxim, "Live and let live."

* * *

The art of putting up with people may be learned, Schopenhauer suggests, by practicing patience on inanimate objects, which, in virtue of some mechanical or general physical necessity, opposes a stubborn resistance to our freedom of action—a form of patience which is required every day.

"The patience thus gained may be applied to our dealings with men, by accustoming ourselves to regard their opposition, wherever we encounter it, as the inevitable outcome of their nature, which sets itself up against us in virtue of the same rigid law of necessity as governs the resistance of inanimate objects.

"To be indignant at their conduct is as foolish as to be angry with a stone because it falls into your path. And with many people the wisest thing you can do is to resolve to make use of those whom you cannot alter."

DEATHS--FUNERALS

MRS. ELIZABETH D. MINNIE

Mrs. Elizabeth Diem Minnie, 84 years of age, well known member of The Glendale Evening News Sunset club and the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, died early this morning, Wednesday, January 28, 1925, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Kern, 332 West Harvard street. Her death followed an illness of several weeks, during which she had suffered with pneumonia since December 1.

Elizabeth Diem was born February 2, 1840, in Detroit, Mich. On September 6, 1856, she was married in Marine City, Mich., to Dominic Minnie. After their marriage they resided in Marine City until 1871, and then lived in Bay City and Detroit, while Mr. Minnie was engaged as chief engineer on the Great Lakes. Ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. Minnie came to California, and over three years ago to Glendale.

During their residence in Glendale Mr. and Mrs. Minnie enjoyed good health and two years ago had the pleasure of a visit to their old home in Michigan, where they were honored at a big family reunion. They passed their sixty-eighth wedding anniversary in September.

With Mr. Minnie, who is 89 years old, Mrs. Minnie took active interest in the Sunset club, attending meetings and winning many friends by her sweet and charming personality. In addition to their friendships in the Sunset club the Minnies made hosts of friends in the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, to which they belonged. They also had many friends in Masonic circles, Mr. Minnie being a life member of Royal Arch Masons, No. 129, Bay City, Mich.

Mrs. Minnie is survived by her husband; by two daughters, Mrs. Kern, with whom she resided; Mrs. M. L. Veenfliet of Alpena, Mich.; two sons, Raymond J. Minnie of Provo, Utah; Roland W. Minnie of Parkins, Ark.; an only sister, Mrs. Martha Folts of Flint, Mich., who is now in Glendale; and by two granddaughters, Mrs. C. M. L. Nelson and Miss Ruth W. Kern of Glendale.

New Pastor

REV. ROBERT H. MOON, who will be in charge of the Gospel Tabernacle church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Rev. Robert H. Moon, of Oakland, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Gospel Tabernacle church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Louise and Chestnut streets, and will arrive here to take charge on February 22. Rev. Moon has been pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle at Oakland for the past three years and has held a successful pastorate at that place. He practiced law for sixteen years prior to entering the ministry and for some time was a member of the Milford P. Lyon evangelistic party.

Rev. Moon was assistant pastor of the Moody Tabernacle at Chicago during the pastorate of Rev. Paul Rader. The training of Rev. Moon as a lawyer, his experience in the evangelistic field and his deep insight into the word of God will make him a valuable addition to the pastors of Glendale, it is declared. Rev. Moon has a wife and two daughters, Charlotte and Aimee. They will reside at the church parsonage at 310 East Chestnut street.

Rev. C. H. Chrisman, who has held the pastorate of the Gospel Tabernacle church since September 1, 1922, has accepted an appointment as district superintendent of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. His district includes Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. Rev. Chrisman and his family will continue to make Glendale their home and are building a residence at 373 Mission road.

The Gospel Tabernacle church was first organized in Glendale ten years ago when Rev. George W. Davis, now of Los Angeles, held Bible classes in the chapel at 310 East Chestnut street on Tuesday nights. Sunday services were started in 1920 and the pulpit was then supplied successfully by two returned missionaries, Rev. Philip Hinkey, of China, and Rev. Thomas Francis, of Japan.

During the time of Rev. Chrisman's pastorate a new church has been erected. Ground for the new church was broken January 2, 1923. The church has a seating capacity of 1,000 and is built along the Mission style of architecture. The value of the church, parsonage and three lots is estimated at $75,000. Receipts for the two and one-half years of Rev. Chrisman's pastorate have been over $60,000, including gifts to missions, which is an important part of the work.

Of the original Bible class, about fifty members united with the new organization and the present membership is 225, but this number, however, does not represent the attendance as a great many non-members attend regularly at the services.

Warns Radio Fans of Danger With Aerials

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 28.—Radio fans were warned today by City Manager H. G. Bottorf that the present arrangement of numerous aerials in this city constitutes a menace to public safety because they are either directly connected with or in close proximity to high voltage power lines. The warning was prompted following the death of two women in Turlock who were electrocuted while using a radio set when a high voltage line connected with their aerial.

Radio aerials, it is ordered, must be erected on a higher level than power lines and at a reasonable distance away.

Girl, 18, Is Temporarily Blinded by Moonshine

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Jan. 28.—Poisonous moonshine has resulted in temporary blindness of an 18-year-old girl, serious illness of another girl and the arrest of two youths at Lakeview, Ore. An alleged Saturday night party at which the liquor was served is blamed.

Milk Pasteurization Failure Crime, Claim

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 28.—"Any city that fails to require pasteurization of milk is guilty of criminal negligence," Dr. Allan Craig of Chicago said here last night at a sectional meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Congress Has Little Time Left In Session

March 4 and if the country manages to get along without a session of Congress from March until December it will indeed be proof that pre-war normalcy has returned.

Judging by letters received by members of Congress requesting relief either from past laws that have become burdensome or economic problems that require government aid, the demand for an almost continuous session of Congress year in and year out would seem to have become imbedded in the minds of a great many organizations as well as individuals. And there are some who even question whether the business of government will not be retarded if as many problems are left pending on March 4 next as apparently will be the case.

Congress would normally convene in December but that means inaction as a rule until after the Christmas holidays. A meeting of Congress in October or November would get things started for the regular session and make it possible perhaps to adjourn early in 1926 when the primaries will be held preliminary to the congressional elections of November, 1926.

It is very essential to Mr. Coolidge that he win the 1926 election and his only chance for a good legislative record will come in the Congress which is scheduled to meet in December of this year. There is every indication, therefore, that he will start Congress to work earlier than December and that the comfortable majority given him in the last election will be expected to put through tax reform and other administration proposals with old time legislative smoothness.

Relief
For pain—quick

The worst pains people suffer can be relieved at once. Rheumatic pain, soreness, backache, cold in chest, etc.

Rub the sore spot with red pepper. Nothing else supplies such concentrated, such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt.

You feel it instantly. In three minutes that heat penetrates to the depths. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. The pain and the soreness depart.

People used to use plasters, mustard and liniments. But modern science has found a better way, a quicker, more efficient way, a way without objections.

Don't suffer pains which Red Pepper Rub relieves almost at once. Don't let cold in the chest go neglected. Have this rub at hand—get it now. The time will come when its quick relief will mean much to someone in your home.

Red Pepper is saving millions of painful hours. Let it save them for you and yours.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"Dearest Dr. Lulu: I am a girl of 16 and formerly belonged to the F. F. F., but becoming weary of them, I followed your instructions and left the bunch. You know they are so unpleasant to look at! After a reduction of 18 pounds I can now march along with these girls with the 'wonderful' figures without a bit of envy in my heart.

"I am afraid that dieting has made me proud of myself, but I am so grateful for the results that I cannot help writing and telling you.

"My father who is 47, is troubled with a rheumatic heart, and I wish you would send him your article pertaining to that subject. I would also like the article on constipation.

"Thanking you again for your helpful advice in this paper,—Mary."

You should be proud of yourself, Mary, because you have shown that you have strength of purpose and character.

If you followed my directions, as you are still in the growing stage, you have had at least three glasses of milk, a goodly amount of other high protein foods, such as eggs, nuts, meat, and fish, and some whole grain bread and cereals in your daily fare, and you did not reduce too rapidly. You cut down only on your fats and sweets, didn't you?

It is better for those under 21 to be slightly overweight for the average than to be slightly underweight, so I hope you did not reduce too much.

Your father should be under the care of a specialist who will give him graduated exercises and special directions. He should never allow himself to become overweight and it is especially important for him to live hygienically.

COLITIS

L. A.—Yes, colitis (inflammation of the colon) can be responsible for frequent frontal headaches and a lot of other disturbances. You should be under the care of a physician.

The dietetic treatment of colitis is to change the intestinal flora and to get rid of the putrefactive type of bacteria. An exclusive milk or a milk, vegetable and fruit diet will do this. Acidophilus milk, a buttermilk made with acidophilus germs, seems to be better than ordinary milk for this. You can order this from your druggist.

It has been found experimentally in animals that mucous membranes lose their tone and become inflamed and catarrhal on a diet insufficient in vitamins nad mineral elements. Has yours been so deficient? (Vitamins are most plentiful in milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, egg yolks and cod liver oil.)

Do you eat too many starchy and sweet foods? That will cause fermentative indigestition. Insufficient mastication and overeating will also cause it, and so will an unbalanced diet.

ALLIGATOR PEARS

The avocado is a tropical fruit now cultivated in Florida and Southern California. It is exceedingly wholesome and consists of about two per cent protein, 6 per cent carbohydrates and 15 per cent to 20 per cent of fat. The fat is in a highly digestible form and is also rich in vitamins.

With its high content of fat, it is high in caloric value. An ounce of pure fat contains 275 calories, so if the avocado is 20 per cent fat, an ounce would contain one-fifth or 50 calories; so it is a good fattening food. An ounce of the pulp would be as much as could be gotten in to slightly rounding tablespoonfuls.

Tomorrow—Answers to Correspondents

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

DEVELOPING THE LEGS

Women hate exercise, they say, in spite of the numbers that weekly join country clubs and gymnasiums. It is true that exercise is a little like dish washing; it's drudgery if it's done alone, but nothing at all if someone else is there to talk to or to have a hand in it. Gym classes are fun; exercises done alone in one's bedroom are tedious beyond words.

But suppose you want awfully to improve your figure and for some reason you can't belong to a swimming club or a gymnasium. The only thing to do is to buckle down to it, learn which exercises are easiest and pleasantest to do and then do them every day.

Here's one, for instance, frequently mentioned here which is not practised as much as it ought to be. You needn't take time off to do this, you can practise it while you do other things. It consists simply in walking around a certain amount, in stockings or bare feet or in limp soled moccasins, on the balls of the feet and the toes, "tiptoes" as we wrongly term it. This is really a wonderful exercise as any ballet master will tell you. It strengthens the ankles and takes off fat. It develops, rounds out and makes firm, therefore shapes the calf of the leg. That line running from ankle bone to knee is an important one, no matter what length skirts we may be wearing this season. It must curve in slenderly to the ankle and round out gently toward the calf of the leg. A "broomstick" outline will spoil any costume and make any woman look homely and awkward. Tiptoe around your room as you dress and work and improve your legs.

Mrs. L. I. A.: The pilocarpine tonic which is recommended so often in the "Chats" would be helpful in your case. If you care for the formula I will be glad to mail it to you on receipt of your stamped, self-addressed envelope for forwarding. Meantime be sure to massage your scalp every day until you feel that you have improved its circulation. Never mind if more hair falls as all the loose hair must come out so that new will grow in its place. Any hair tonic that you include with the massaging should have some oil in it and a purifier such as sulphur or something similiar in its effect.

Try this method

Tomorrow: Manicure Helps

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The Editor.

Several of my readers have asked me how to make the old-fashioned Philadelphia strapple. Here are two good recipes:

Scrapple from Spare Ribs: Scrape and wash one pound of spare ribs. Add to them one quart of cold water, two peeled and sliced onions, some fresh celery leaves and one-fourth teaspoon of sage. Let come slowly to the boiling point, then simmer till the bones will fall out of the meat. Now shred the meat from the gristle and strain the liquor. There is no need to let it cool before you remove the fat. The presence of a little fat is never noticed.

The next step is to thicken the liquid with one-half cup of yellow cornmeal. If not as thick as mush, add one tablespoon of flour. Stir till it thickens and cook in a double boiler, and when like cooked mush add the shredded meat. Turn the mixture into oblong cake pans and let harden. To serve, slice it rather thickly and fry the slices in a little hot bacon fat. In this frying be sure to have the pan hot before you put the slices into it, but after that keep but a moderate heat under it; for if the fire is too hot throughout the cooking the brown crust will become brown too soon for the thorough heating of the slices, and is likely to peel off when touched with a fork on the plate. On the other hand, do not have too low a fire under the frying pan or the scrapple slices will be pallid. I cook mine about ten minutes to a side with an even, moderate heat. A little experience will teach one how to get it "just right."

Scrapple from a Pig's Head: Boil a clean pig's head in water to cover, till the flesh slips easily from the bones. Take out all bones and chop the meat finely. Cool the liquor in which the head was boiled, then remove the cake of fat from its surface. Now reheat this liquor, season it to suit individual liking with pepper and salt (sage and celery also if desired) and add to it the chopped cooked meat from the head. When boiling briskly, begin to thicken it with yellow cornmeal—just as if you were making cornmeal mush. When you have added enough to make a regular mush, let it simmer for one hour, then pour it into oblong bread pans and let cool and become hard. Cook as above described.

Note: Scrapple may be kept for several weeks in cold weather and sliced off as needed. Some housekeepers store it in their refrigerators.

Tomorrow: Keeping Furniture Clean.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

Study Fine Arts

There was much interest yesterday at the meeting of the fine arts department of the Tuesday Afternoon club. John W. Cotton, artist and department instructor, was in charge of the first hour, when the club women studied the designing of book covers. Mr. Cotton is urging members of the department to make designs from which the club might select one for the cover of next year's yearbook. Another work undertaken by the department is arranging the collection of reproductions of pictures and sketches of the lives of California artists. It is planned to have this collection arranged for ready reference by any club member. Members of the department were most happy yesterday to add to the collection a fine sketch of the life and work of John W. Cotton, appearing in the December number of the "Overland" magazine. The Puthoff exhibit now hung in the banquet hall is attracting many visitors. During the final hour yesterday Mrs. Roy Ballagh, curator, talked on artistry in dress and costuming.

The Store That Has the Goods

DR. OTEY SAYS

Constipation breeds dozens of diseases. Remember Oliver Wendell Holmes definition of a woman? He said: "Woman is a constipated biped with a backache." Much can be done for relief of constipation by eating laxative foods, establishing regular habits, exercise, physics, flushing the bowels a la J. B. L. Cascade and otherwise bolstering up and artificially stimulating a weak digestive tract, but relief is not cure. The CURE must come usually from Osteopathic correction of the nerve force and circulation to the subnormal tissues entrusted with the function of the main sewer system of the body. You can readily understand what would happen to a city if the sewer system became clogged and all kitchen sinks, bath tubs, lavatories, etc., overflowed. If you have a similar condition in your body, call the Osteopathic Human Engineer.

SECOND WEEK OF COMEDY TO OPEN

'Love Laughs' Last Dobinson Play to Be Given at Wednesday Matinee

Today's matinee at the Playhouse will be the final Wednesday matinee performance to be given by the Dobinson Players. "Love Laughs" is the attraction this afternoon and each night for the rest of the week.

"With the beginning of our six nights a week and Saturday matinee policy in February, we have decided to discontinue the Wednesday matinee," Florence Dobinson said today. "This will give us even more time for rehearsals and will permit us to present plays at the opening performance with all the finesse of the final performance.

"When plans I am developing mature, Glendale first nights are quite apt to become an institution that will attract crowds from all points in Southern California.

Attendance Smashed

"The fact that all our attendance records were far surpassed last Saturday night leads me to believe that Glendale is awakening an age-old hunger for the spoken drama, that hunger that can only be satisfied by listening to beautiful words perfectly spoken.

"I am so convinced that an unusually high critical taste exists in Glendale that we are determined to stand or fall at the Playhouse on the finest types of plays possible for us to obtain.

"It is a fact that the spoken play is proving more popular than at any time in the past fifteen years, all over the United States, but I doubt if any city the size of Glendale is so liberally supporting a stock company in first-rate attractions."

CHILD LABOR BILL SPONSORS INSIST

Followers Will Not Abandon Fight for Amendment Governing Children

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Sponsors of the constitutional amendment prohibiting child labor said today that the apparent failure of the amendment through its rejection by one-fourth of the states, would not result in their abandonment of the fight for its adoption.

The fight can and will, they said, be carried on by campaigns of rejecting by states, much after the manner that the eighteenth and nineteenth amendments were put through state legislatures.

The legislatures that have rejected the amendment can reconsider their action at any time in the future. Constitutional amendments remain pending for years, and time and circumstances may change the complexion of a legislature.

The campaign for ratification of the amendment is being directed by the American Federation of Labor and it was stated at labor headquarters today that there would be no change in the federation's plans in furtherance of the amendment, despite the unfavorable outlook.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Jan. 28.—The Tujunga Kiwanis club joined in the nation-wide celebration by Kiwanis clubs of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the organization, which was first launched in Detroit in January, 1915. A special program was given at the weekly meeting last Friday and speakers from Los Angeles club were present. In addition to these there were speakers from the local club including A. C. Stover, past-president of the Tujunga club, Frederick W. Keeler of the educational committee, Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens was the speaker from Los Angeles and his subject was "Kiwanis Ideals." Since the founding of the club, 1300 other clubs have organized in various parts of the United States and Canada. The local club is on its second year in Tujunga. Civic and social service, free from political, social and sectarian prejudices is the aim of the Kiwanis club.

The first of an extensive system of fire breaks to be built in the Verdugo hills and the Sierra Madre foothills has been started by men from the county forestry department. Brush is being cut from the lines and burned.

Philanthropy, domestic science and membership were subjects of discussion at the regular meeting of the executive board of the Tujunga Parent-Teacher association. Reports from officers and committees were heard.

Mrs. T. J. Dolan is building a home on Estaban drive, Hillhaven. James W. Robbins is superintending the work as contractor and builder.

Curbs and sidewalks are being laid on all streets of the "Palms", a residence tract owned by Dr. E. M. Spates.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barry recently made a trip to Carmel, Monterey and other northern points.

PHONE DEMAND

Demand for telephones and postal facilities in Australia is so far beyond expectation that the estimate of $48,000,000 for the three-year program of new works will be far below the sum necessary.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Athletics and sports have an iron hold on the hearts of Americans. And particularly is this true in California.

There are several ideas suggested for comment by recent news stories, and being en route from Sacrameto to Glendale today, the writer takes occasion to air the following views:

Two resolutions were introduced in the Legislature urging an early settlement of the athletic row between the University of California and Stanford, on the one hand, and the University of Southern California on the other. Neither is an attempt to coerce the institutions, but it is deemed proper that they "play ball", or explain the reasons why.

The writer believes that the severance of athletic relations resulted primarily from "greed". Not alone to blame is U. S. C. or U. C., or Stanford, but all schools seeking athletic glory. Not alone is the financial element of football to blame, but that lust for luring players from one school to another by any means. And that includes promises of easy scholarships, membership in fraternities, and so on. All the while, the game for the game's sake, is lost sight of in the shuffle.

From attacks on the state athletic commission it would appear that the American Legion, in some places, also has lost sight of the game in posts' eagerness to glean the shekels from boxing shows. It is well said by one of the commissioners that the desire for legion permits does not emanate alone from the service men, but from those individuals who mask their operations under a patriotic banner to avoid paying the 5 per cent to the commission.

Personally, the writer sees no reason why the legion should not pay the same percentage as individuals; and if the promoters of legion shows are taking advantage of a situation, as it was alleged by Culver City post after the Fuente-Fulton fiasco, one does not disagree with the commission in investigating promoters unknown to them.

And if you love the game for the game's sake, sportsmen, why do you not turn out to the basketball games being played by the high school here?

Basketball has all the speed and technique of football and boxing combined. It is just as rough, perhaps, and it gives the athlete an opportunity to display his very best. In the middle-west the cage game is well attended. Why not here?

Really, one is led to believe that it is the element of gambling that makes boxing, like horse racing, baseball and football so popular. If it were not so why the great difference in the grand stands?

Horse racing at Tijuana, prize fighting in New York, football in Pasadena, and baseball in Washington, sells newspapers here, there and everywhere, because—

You know the answer, you bet.

The new Cleveland Six is acknowledged as having those aristocratic appointments and prestige-giving qualities heretofore available only in cars costing from $500 to $1000 over its price.

In addition to its extraordinary roominess, its unusual provisions for comfort and convenience, the Coach Premier, like all Cleveland sixes, has the "One-Shot" Lubrication System.

By this exclusive feature, all manual chassis greasing is eliminated. You simply step on a plunger—and every moving chassis part is flooded with clean, live lubricant.

Before you buy any motor car you should see the new Cleveland Six Coach Premier and secure a demonstration.

CHAPTER XXXII

"There'll be a most unholy row," the Admiral confided. "The only two countries who have kept to their program are yours and mine. France has built twice her allotted number of submarines, and, to be frank, we've winked at it. Germany and Russia between them, as you found out, have kept on exchanging ships and building ships for one another till even the experts can't keep pace with conditions. If you take my advice, Slattery—and they tell me you've got the ear of your government—you'll cable home and urge your administration with all the eloquence you can pump out of your brain, to accept Yeovil's invitation and join the Pact and fight it out with the Senate afterwards. You people have got lots of the right stuff in you, I know, and you can't believe that anything on God's earth could hurt you, but you take it from me there's a hell of a lot of trouble brewing. Get 'em to sign on to the Pact, Slattery. We shall all have a finger in the pie, then, anyway."

"I went straight back to Washington from Monte Carlo," Grant confided, "and I can assure you that I have done my best. The trouble of it is—just as you pointed out a few minutes ago—there's a propaganda going on over there which one can't deal with, unless something happens which will drive the truth home to the people. That fellow, Cornelius Blunn, has founded an organization, with branches in every city in the United States, and that organization exists primarily to stop America joining the Pact, and, secondly, I am convinced, for her destruction. The Press has been tampered with. Blunn has even succeeded in buying the New York."

"But surely your government can't be absolutely blind to what's going on?"

"They've only just begun to realize it," Grant assured his companion. "That's why for this visit they've given me an official status. If the vote were taken today, I think the Senate would reject the proposal to join the Pact by a majority of three to one."

The Admiral nodded sympathetically.

"It's a filthy business," he admitted. "I hate this underground work, myself. All the same, you don't need to worry. When you people really are waked up, it doesn't take you long to get going and the first few hours of the Limitation of Armaments Conference will send all Cornelius Blunn's propaganda sky high."

"I must say you put heart into a man," Grant declared gratefully.

The Admiral rose with a glance at the door and a welcoming smile. "Well," he said, here comes the young lady who's taken the heart of a great many of us. Lady Susan, we've made free with Arthur's room and we've drunk his whisky. I don't know what's going to happen to us. My only excuse is that your father told me to have a chat with Mr. Slattery."

She laughed.

"Why should you need an excuse? There isn't a room in the house where you're not welcome, Admiral. I was scoutng round with Arthur to see if there were any shirkers from the dancing room. We're so short of men. And, Mr. Slattery, my father wishes to see you before you leave."

"I'm quite at his service," Grant replied, rising.

By some means or other the thing he had so greatly desired came to pass—he was left a few yards behind with Susan. She neither avoided nor sought for this contingency. She walked by his side, humming slightly to herself, entirely at her ease.

"Lady Susan," he began, with less than his usual confidence, "may I remind you of our parting at Monte Carlo, of something I said to you?"

She looked at him with slightly uplifted eyebrows.

"I should consider your doing so in atrociously bad taste," she replied.

He winced a little. Perhaps she saw that he was genuinely suffering. Perhaps that love of fair play, which was so strong in her, rebelled against the idea of any possible misunderstanding. She made sure that they were well out of hearing of the other two.

"I detest hearsay evidence," she said. "I shall ask you a question. A terrible thing to do, I suppose, but I shall ask it all the same. Did the Princess von Diss accompany you on your yacht from Monte Carlo to America?"

"She did," Grant admitted.

"And was she not also a passenger on the steamer from which you landed yesterday?"

"She was, but—"

"Please do not continue, Mr. Slattery," she begged. "I hated asking you these questions, but I was determined that there should be no risk of any misunderstanding. I do not wish to quarrel with you. I found you a very pleasant companion at Monte Carlo. I hope that we shall continue friends. We can only do so if you will remember that, although I do not think that I am a prude, I should consider any reference to our last conversation at Monte Carlo as an insult. Angela dear, what luck to meet you here! I want to present Mr. Grant Slattery, who is dying to dance—Lady Angela Brookes. Mr. Slatterv is an American, Angela, and I will vouch for his dancing. He used to try and teach me complications, but I am not nimble enough. And, Angie, I don't think you'd better lose your heart to Mr. Slattery. He makes love to single ladies most fluently, but he runs away with the married ones. And I never thanked you for your roses, Mr. Slattery. Goodnight, all of you. I must go back to my post of duty."

Grant offered his arm to the very pretty girl to whom he had been introduced.

"I suppose we must obey orders," she said.

"Part of them," he answered, a little desperately. "Part of them I hope you will forget."

She laughed up at him. He had seemed very grave, but perhaps after all he was going to be amusing.

THE GATEWAY

The truth! no matter how much it hurts—other people!

What would happen to a person who decided to live his life with this motto streaming from his invisible fort can easily be answered, for instances are numerous of the unpopularity gained by being blunt and frank—by speaking the truth, in other words.

Wesley Barry, in his latest starring vehicle, "George Washington Jr.," which comes to the Gateway Theatre, Wednesday, in the role of a young lad of seventeen who decides on following the precepts of our country's first father.

Supporting him in this Warner Brothers screen classic are the following: Gertrude Olmstead, Leon Bary, Charles Conklin, Otis Harlan, William Courtwright and Edward Phillips. Direction is by Mal St Clair, and the adaptation by Rex Taylor; and a fine bill of selected vaudeville also will be shown.

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"Love Laughs" will open tonight at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre for its second week as a stock production of the Dobinson Players. Mary Worth, who won popularity last week by her clever work in the leading role, will be seen again in this part. The play, written by George D. Parker, has a dual theme of romance and mystery. The curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock.

The excellent supporting cast chosen for the production includes Mary Isabelle Alpaugh, Joseph McManus, William H. Stephens, Richard Ehlers, Eugenia Florence, Arthur Lovejoy and Harry J. Glazier.

The story revolves about a nerve specialist who is besought by a love-struck bachelor, who asks to be made sick so that he may be nursed by his inamorata. Propinquity, says the bachelor, will bring about the desired engagement. The doctor finally responds to the request and the ten days' supposed illness is on.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TALCUM POWDER

"Uncle Wiggily, may I ask you to do me a favor today?" inquired Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy of the rabbit gentleman as he started out from his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Of course, you may, and I'll do it for you," he said with a polite little twinkle of his pink nose. "What is it?"

"Please bring me some talcum powder," begged the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I am going out to the movies with Mrs. Twistytail, the lady pig, this evening, and I want some orange flower talcum powder."

So the rabbit gentleman promised to bring it, and off he hopped over the fields and through the woods. He was looking for an adventure, but none could he find, and at last tired and weary, the bunny said:

"I will go to the six and seven cent store and get Nurse Jane's talcum powder. After that I may have an advenure."

Hopping into the store, Uncle Wiggily went up to a counter, behind which stood a little mousie girl clerk, and the bunny saw a small box which looked as if it might hold orange flower talcum.

"I'll smell this," he said to the mousie girl.

"And if I like it, I'll buy it for Nurse Jane."

"Oh, don't smell that!" squeaked the little mousie girl.

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily, important-like. "I guess I like sweet-smelling talcum powder as much as Nurse Jane does."

The bunny must have pressed a spring in the box cover, for, all of a sudden, the cover flew back, and out popped a funny Black Jack from the box. And Black Jack hit Uncle Wiggily on his pink, twinkling nose.

"Oh me! Oh my!" cried the rabbit, but he also had to laugh, for he wasn't hurt.

"I tried to tell you not to open that box," said the little mousie girl. "That's a Jack-in-the-Box. The talcum powder boxes are on the next counter."

"Thank you," said Uncle Wiggily, politely. "But this Jack in the Box is very cute. I'll buy it and take it home to Baby Bunty. It will make her laugh."

So he bought the Jack, who was in the box looking like talcum powder, and then, going to the next counter, the rabbit bought some real talcum powder, which smelled like orange blossoms.

"Nurse Jane and Baby Bunty will both be pleased tonight," said the rabbit uncle as he hopped toward his hollow stump bungalow.

He had not gone very far, before, all of a sudden, out of the bushes at the side of the woodland patch popped the Fuzzy Fox.

"Hold on! Wait a minute!" barked the Fox. "What have you there?" and he looked sharply at the two boxes Uncle Wiggily carried.

"I have some orange talcum powder for Nurse Jane," answered the bunny.

"Right well do I know that, for I can smell it!" barked the Fox. "Give me that talcum powder for my wife. And just because you didn't give it to me first, I'm going to nibble your ears."

The Fox made a grab, but he snatched from the bunny the Jack-in-the-Box instead of the talcum powder. And when the Fox tried to open the box, to smell the orange powder, the Black Jack popped out of the Box and hit the bad chap on the nose.

"Oh, wow! Oh, gazinka! What's this?" howled the Fox. "This must be magical talcum powder. None of that for me or my wife!" Then dropping the Jack-in-the-Box, away ran the bad chap, nibbling no ears at all. Uncle Wiggily picked up he Black Jack, stuffed it back in the box, and fastened down the cover and hopped on.

Bunty liked her toy very much, and Nurse Jane said the talcum powder was perfectly splendiferous, so everyone was happy except the Fox, and he didn't deserve to be.

And if the dusting brush doesn't try to grow up tall like the kitchen broom, and lose all its hair doing so, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the acorn pie.

ENFORCING OF PROHIBITION STRESSED

President Coolidge Counted On As 'Dry'; More Stern Laws Are Wanted

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Five years of prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors still finds the question deep rooted in American politics but with the cause of law enforcement taken up in earnest at last by a president of the United States. Slowly and without ostentation, the "dry" side has made its impress'on on Calvin Coolidge so that law enforcement may be expected henceforth with all the vigor that the government can command.

Mr. Coolidge in his early days in politics was counted as not altogether "dry" but whatever he might have been before he stands today as the only president in the last five years who has won the absolute confidence of the "drys." Here is a significant announcement by the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"The vigorous and intelligent action of Attorney General Stone in New Jersey, together with the quite evident personal interest of the president of the United States in the problem of law enforcement clearly heralds the dawn of a new day. Recreant officials will be 'put down.' Faithful men will be elevated. Criminal rebellion will be crushed. The prohibition law will be enforced."

Must Enforce Law

For several weeks there have been whisperings that Mr. Coolidge had taken the prohibition problem into his own hands and was watching enforcement very closely. The "drys" have been jubilant. They claim to have been harassed and obstructed at every turn by subordinate officials and that the president's recognition of the situation is a moral victory for the cause of enforcement.

Mr. Coolidge has had relatively little to say about prohibition since he took office. He is represented, however, as viewing the matter from the viewpoint of law and order. An amendment forbidding the manufacture and sale of intoxicants is a part of the Constitution and the law passed providing penalties for violation and there is nothing for an honest and sincere public official to do but enforce the law.

Some of the feeling expressed by the "drys" that they have not been given co-operation by the government is due to the presence in high administration quarters of pronounced "wets." The secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, is called a "wet," having had large interests in a distillery before prohibition came.

Previous Presidents

He is much too busy with the financial side of the government to give personal attention to the work of one of his bureaus—that of internal revenue which includes the prohibition unit—and while no one has ever proved that he interfered with prohibition enforecment, the "drys" have never been satisfied and there is pending in Congress a bill to regulate the prohibition unit by removing it from the authority of the commissioner of internal revenue.

The "drys" have been besieging every president since the eighteenth amendment was adopted. President Wilson was not in sympathy with the Volstead act, in fact he vetoed it on a technicality but plainly didn't like the measure anyhow. Mr. Harding never served liquor at the White House table but took a drink regularly after his golf game until some one reminded him that his act in carrying any liquor from his own rooms in the White House to the golf club was a violation of the Volstead law unless he obtained a permit. After that Mr. Harding refrained and toward the end of his career became a teetotaler and made at Denver a plea for law enforcement which entirely satisfied the "drys."

There are various measures pending in Congress relating to law enforcement. Most of them look toward the strengthening rather than the weakening of the Volstead act. The Stalker bill for instance would provide jail sentences for first offenders. The Johnson bill provides for deportation of aliens convicted of violating the Volstead law. It once passed the House but failed to be voted on in the Senate and is now up again before the House.

Want More Laws

In addition to the foregoing, the "drys" are trying to get legislation which shall place all beverage alcoholic liquors under control of government agencies for sale and distribution and that particularly the government should acquire all liquor now in government bonded warehouses. The purpose of this is said to be legitimate distribution.

This is not all however, for the "drys" are urging too, that "eventually Congress should place under the provisions of the prohibition act all intoxicating liquors made and possessed before the passage of the eighteenth amendment; at present wealthy owners of "cellars" provided they can establish the fact or fiction that their liquors were obtained before prohibition being undisturbed by the prohibition law."

For the thirsty there is little hope that the Volstead law will be repealed for some time to come unless public sentiment changes materially. So far as Congress is concerned, it is in the control of the "drys." What may result from strict enforcement of the law is another question as some wets think it will provide the reaction they long have expected.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR ATWATER LIBRARY

Executive Officers of Improvement Body To Meet With Frank Shugart and Arrange to Erect Building

Executive officers of the Atwater Community Improvement association will meet with Frank Shugart tonight, in an effort to complete plans for a library building in the Atwater district. Members of the Los Angeles Library board have notified association officers that their only chance of obtaining a branch library is to erect a suitable building, which the board will lease.

It is believed arrangements can be made with Mr. Shugart to erect such a building. Final arrangements for the general meeting of the improvement association next Monday night at the Neighborhood Christian church will be made tonight also. At the general meeting reports of the library committee and committee on lower street car fares will be given.

Meeting Is Postponed

The meeting of Atwater Masons scheduled for Friday night has been postponed, according to P. E. Lipscomb. There will be no meeting of the Masons until a week from Friday. Further steps in the formation of a Masonic lodge in the Atwater district have been delayed until sanction for the lodge can be secured.

Mr. Lipscomb, J. E. Noble and L. E. Chapman will meet with officers of the Los Angeles Masonic club next Monday at noon and will seek permission to establish an Atwater lodge. Data on the population of the district, its location with respect to other lodge districts, and other information will be presented before the Masonic club officers by the Atwater men.

Special instruction in first aid was given, the Lions patrol winning the contest. William Benson was appointed troop bugler and assistant senior patrol leader.

At the meeting next Tuesday night another first-aid contest will be held. Special scout anniversary services will be held at the Grand View Community church on February 8. Harvey Cheesman, Glendale scout executive, will be present.

Mrs. Toll will be one of many speakers of prominence. Women's and men's clubs, other organizations and many people of note will attend the affair.

Sheriff Follows Trail To Hollywood on Bomb

A trail that leads to Hollywood is being followed by the Los Angeles sheriff's office, in an effort to shed light on the latest attempted outrage against Ernest M. Torchia and his family. Chief John D. Fraser of the Glendale police department disclaims any knowledge of this, stating that the work of his office ended when the results of last night's investigation were turned over to county authorities. In his opinion, the episode last night on the Torchia grounds at 1329 North Campbell street, Casa Verdugo, had no connection with the Christmas day bomb outrage.

City Officials Appear In Los Angeles Courts

Both City Attorney Ray L. Morrow and City Prosecutor Leslie R. Tarr were in Los Angeles today, representing the city of Glendale in superior court actions. Mr. Morrow was appearing as counsel for the city in the action brought by Winifred F. Marr, claiming invalidity of $50,000 worth of sixth district improvement bonds, while Mr. Tarr was acting as counsel for the city in the action brought by Edgar S. Hughes, who claims that his arrest on a speeding charge on November 17, 1924, was illegal, in that the ticket did not show the rate of speed charged.

Ford Assembly Plant Started In Carolinas

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 28.—Production has started at the new Ford assembly plant here, the first of six completely standardized plants begun last year to care for distribution in the south. Plants at Memphis and Jacksonville are ready for occupancy and others at Norfolk, Louisville and Dallas will be completed soon. A Frank Discussion of "Reproducing" Pianos

There are so many kinds of player pianos, so-called "reproducing pianos," etc., and all claiming about the same thing—that some do not know exactly what is what. Some think this—some think that—but very few know. And the confusion continues unnecessarily—for the facts are clear and simple.

What Is a Player Piano?

Let us answer this first, merely to clear up the situation. A player piano is an instrument that plays automatically from a music roll directed by an operator, mostly by foot-power. Some grind out flat, expressionless "canned music," while with some the operator gives expression to the music by following directions printed on the music roll for his guidance. It is sometimes amazing the tonal effects a trained operator can secure with a player piano—there is a distinct technique at which some people become quite adept.

What Is a Reproducing Piano?

It is a step beyond the player piano. It requires no operator, and reproduces to a limited degree the original playing of great pianists. It is possible to move from one degree of tonal volume to another according to sixteen fixed degrees of intensity—but is naturally limited in its ability to reproduce the smooth, gradually swelling crescendos or diminuendos of first class playing, the tones of which are obviously not built up according to any system of fixed steps.

In spite of their limitations, reproducing pianos with this system are still on the market.

Unfortunately their claims of superiority have led to some confusion in the public mind.

What Is an Ampico Re-enacting Piano?

This is to be very frank. The re-enacting piano is in reality a reproducing piano raised to the final state of perfection—the Ampico. The difference between the Ampico and all others is clearly evident by actual comparison, but unfortunately not all people hear the comparison. The Ampico alone re-enacts in the minutest detail all of the finer graduations of tone—all of the characteristic tone coloring, and phrasing of each great artist—his style—his interpretation—his personality. It is the only reproducing instrument that actually does re-enact the original playing of the master musicians. This is probably the broadest statement ever made for the Ampico—but contrary to our practice of letting the Ampico tell its own story—it seems advisable at this time to help clear up the confusion in the public mind.

There is but One Ampico—it is obtainable in Glendale Only in the Knabe, J. & C. Fischer and Franklin Pianos at

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The spectacular rise of wheat prices at the principal trading centers of the United States and Canada and the continuation of the forward movement in prices of leading oil stocks were the principal developments in the financial markets today. Nominal activity and narrow price movements prevailed in the cotton, commodity and foreign exchange markets.

Industrial stocks were supplied to the market at price concessions in the first hour or two, but the supply of cheap stocks soon became exhausted and activity in these stocks slowed down considerably. That short selling was responsible for some of this early weakness was evident from the sharp rebound which many stocks enjoyed when short covering was attempted later in the day.

The principal new feature of the week in the steel trade, according to the Iron Age, was the advance of $2 a ton in certain grades of rolled products, based on larger bookings. After declining to 125⅝ for a loss of one point, U. S. Steel pushed forward to above 127, carrying with it the independent steel stocks which, however, were comparatively inactive. The oil stocks staged an aggressive forward movement in which practically all of the listed standard and independent oils participated. In some of the reports from the Wortham pool, crude oil production was estimated to be at 88,000 barrels daily. The menace of over-production appeared to have passed for the time being at least.

The advance of Standard Oil of New Jersey to 45 brought the price to the highest level since the stock was split up in 1922. Pacific Oil's rise to above 64 was no less spectacular and Sinclair on unusually heavy trading rose to 22⅝. Pan-Americans gained a point each; Sarland, Skelly and other prominent independent oil shares fractionally higher. In the financial district it was estimated that more than a third of the total transactions today were in oil stocks.

A few of the railroad stocks were in demand at slightly higher prices, but as a group the railroad stocks were neglected. St. Paul common and preferred, as well as the junior bonds of the company, displayed increasing nervousness as discussion of its affairs seemed to make an unfavorable turn. Meanwhile the officials of the company are hopeful and traffic in the first three weeks in January showed a decided improvement. New Haven did nothing to reflect the annual report, showing that the company earned 2 per cent on the common stock last year.

Nash motors climbed back to 270, a recovery of 3 points of its recent losses. American Can, Cast Iron Pipe and othre high priced market leaders leaned to the upward side of the market but speculative interest in them was lacking.

Stock sales totaled today 1,721,900 shares; bonds $13,623,000.

MARKET SUMMARY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—Crude oil production in California decreased by about 3000 barrels a day during the past week to a total of about 607,000 barrels. In the Los Angeles basin there was an increase of 2000 barrels in the Dominguez field and losses of 1000 barrels in the Long Beach, Santa Fe Springs and Huntington Beach field, while the production in the Torrance and Rosecrans fields remained stationary, making a net daily loss of 1000 barrels in this basin.

Shipments of crude oil and refined products out of Los Angeles harbor last week totalled 1,864,623 barrels, an increase over the preceding week of about 200,000 barrels.

The board of directors of the Union Oil Co., yesterday formally approved details of the plan to issue $10,000,000 of Union Oil ten year 5 per cent bonds. It is announced that this issue will be offered the public on a 5½ per cent basis this week,

Overhand Shot In Last Few Seconds of Extra Play Beats Calla Lily

By A. S. HALL
Of The Evening News Staff.

Shooting an overhand shot from near the end line in the last few seconds of an extra period of play, Bill Schenck hurled the Radios to victory last night over the Calla Lily Creamery team in a City league match at Harvard High school gym. The game was marked by spectacular shots from all parts of the floor, constant changing of the lead and snappy play throughout. The Radios battled their way to a 29 to 27 victory.

The Radios started the game strong, getting seven points in the first quater, while the milkmen were making one basket. In the second quarter the milkmen succeeded in caging four baskets, while the Radios made two baskets and a free throw, the score standing 12 to 10, Radios, at the half.

Calla Lily evened the count soon after the second half started, but the Radios forged ahead with a basket shot from mid-floor. The count was quickly evened by the milkmen. As the third quarter ended the Calla Lily crowd was leading, 18 to 16. Radios tied the count again early in the fourth quarter, but Calla Lily took the lead on two free throws, and tried to cinch the game with another basket, making the score 22 to 18. McKowan, right forward for the Radios, made two baskets in quick succession, tying the score at 22-all as the fourth quarter ended.

Radios Take Lead

As the extra period started, Radios made a basket from mid-floor after the toss-up. Calla Lily scored a basket, score 24-all, and went ahead on a free throw, score 25-24. Radios came back strong and added a basket, swinging the score in their favor, 26-25. Calla Lily scored the next basket, putting them in the lead, 27-26.

After the ball had been worked back and forth on the court and several shots rimmed the basket, only to fall away, amid groans from the spectators, Bill Schenck succeeded in dribbling the length of the court. As he started to shoot, Randall, right guard of the milkmen, was called for hacking. The basket was made, however, before the whistle for the foul sounded, and Referee Butterfield allowed the basket, putting the Radios in the lead, 28-27. Schenck missed his first free throw, but sank the second one just as the extra period ended. the score standing 29-27, Radios.

Injured, But Plays

To make Schenck's work all the more praiseworthy, he turned his right ankle in the first quarter, but insisted on playing the rest of the game with the injured ankle tightly taped. In the third quarter time was called again to retape the ankle. He played a wonderful game at guard, mixing in without hesitancy and battling his way down the court. The only basket he made during the entire game was the one which brought victory to his team.

Talbert, who started at center for the Calla Lily crew, but shifted to left forward, was the chief scoring machine for the milkmen, making 18 points. McKowan led the Radios with 12 points.

The lineup:

Radios—29		Calla Lily—27
McKowan (12)	R.F.	Shnglbkr. (27)
Wimmer (10)	L.F.	Hyatt
Worthman (4)	C.	Talbert
Schenck (3)	R.G.	Randall
McAllister	L.G.	Avery (2)

Substitutions—Talbert (18) for Hyatt; Hyatt (4) for Talbert.

The Huli Trucks and Christian church team will meet tonight at the Harvard High school gym. The truckmen are favored to win inasmuch as they defeated the Standard Oil team 29 to 21 last week. The churchmen lost last week to the Calla Lily crew, 44 to 17.

Tomorrow night will see the advent of the American Legion team, representing Glendale post No. 127. Glenn Mapes, chairman of the athletic committee of the post, has announced the Legion team will compete in the City league and also meet other Legion post teams in the county Legion tuornament. The M. E. churchmen, who provided an upset Monday night by defeating Standard Oils 25 to 15, will be the Legion's opponents. Members of the Legion team are: Mapes, Walker, Schmidt, Waechter, Buck, McKay, Powell and Bunker.

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News

The football world will do well to observe with fitting ceremonies the date, November 13, 1925.

For that day will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the advent of football, the type of game which formed the basis for the present one which reigns supreme over the country from October to Thanksgiving Day. It will help mark the passing of the first fifty years in the Modern Sport Era.

The first intercollegiate game of football played in America was staged between Princeton and Rutgers, in New Brunswick, November 6, 1869. The idea took hold and yearly the number of games increased. The game had little resemblance to the present one, however.

It was not until Yale and Harvard met on that memorable day in 1875 that rules and tactics were employed which formed the basis of the present game.

Special Rules Framed

For instance, the four field goals scored by Harvard in that historic battle were made possible by a special rule which decreed that "to secure a goal the ball must pass between the goal posts and over a crossline 10 feet high." That was rule four in the "concessionary rules" under which the contest was staged.

These "concessionary rules" were a modification of the general rules governing Rugby games up to that time. Many experts scoffed at the new rules and decried the "blow" aimed at the heart of the game. Few were they then who realized that the steps taken were the first of a series of changes that were to play an important part in the evolution of the game and the building up of it to a sport drawing millions of fans through its gates each fall and ranking as one of the major games in the sporting world fifty years hence.

In the Harvard-Yale game and for some time afterwards kickers were allowed to punt the ball over the bar as well as drop it or boot it from placement.

When the history of Harvard-Yale games is discussed in these times and the games of heroes of the Crimson are brought forth seldom is mention made of Leeds, Seamans, Blanchard and Tower. There are few men living now who recall their deeds. Yet these were the four men who kicked the field goals for Harvard in that epochal game.

The regrettable feature is that the records contain no inkling as to the distance these men kicked.

Despite some criticism and objections the enthusiasm aroused by the Harvard-Yale game of 1875 resulted in the calling of a conference among Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia men early in 1876. The American Intercollegiate football association was formed at that conference. This association and the rules it adopted placed the game of football on a sound footing.

Flying Wedge Disastrous

The rules were changed almost yearly. The Rugby features were lessened. Came the days of the flying wedge—the bone crushing period that almost spelled the death knell of the game. Only the faith that red blooded men had in the game and the ability of the leaders to alter the rules to minimize the casualties without lessening the action and thrills and contest of physical skill in the game saved it.

The elimination of the flying tackle, the substitution of the general open style of play for the gruelling close formation offense all were performed painlessly. These features have made the game more popular.

One interesting paragraph in the history of football is the novel way in which running with the ball was conceived.

In 1823 the rules of the Rugby game, as played in England, forbade running with the ball. During a heated game that year William Webb Ellis, who later became internationally known as rector of St. Clement Dane's in the Strand, London, "lost his head."

He received the ball and, not knowing how to dispose of it due to the press of players about him, took it in his arms and "lit out" for his team's goal. The idea drew attention and the rules were subsequently altered to permit that feature.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Jack Kearns must think a lot of Jimmy Duffy (Hyman Gold). He has notified the boxer that he intends to exercise his rights in a five-year contract that Duffy signed three years ago when Jack took him east.

Since this notification came through a firm of Oakland lawyers it looks as though Kearns means business. Duffy, it appears, would like to be handled by Tommy Simpson of Oakland who is Duffy's adviser.

With the exception of the time Duffy went east and had the bad bout with Lew Tendler he has fought almost entirely in Simpson's shows. Just now Tommy needs Duffy as he seems to be the only coast boy who figures to have much of a chance against the eastern champions and near champions.

If Duffy is grabbed by Kearns it will look pretty much like an act of ingratitude on Jack's part toward Simpson, who, according to Bob Shand, sporting authority and referee, was pretty fine to Dempsey when the champion most needed a friend.

It seems that when Jack beat Gunboat Smith he did not have a real manager. He came to Shand and said he was going to ask Simpson to manage him. This he is reported to have done. Simpson declined and recommended Kearns, saying Jack could do more for him and carry him higher.

Now will Kearns have the heart to take Duffy away from the man who furnished him with the big meal ticket of all time? Let fans, who knows what sort of a hart Kearns has got, figure it out for themselves. In the meantime Dempsey owes Simpson a lot, too—and Jack has been known to return favors. That's no joke, either.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Those who know George Little of Michigan, or who have met him, will be inclined to congratulate Wisconsin upon obtaining him as director of athletics at Madison.

Little is a fine, upstanding young man who knows a great deal about football and other branches of athletics and incidentally is very well liked by the men with whom he will have to deal throughout the conference.

It is quite likely that the university authorities passed Dr. Meanwell by for good reasons. He had been mentioned prominently as the man likely to succeed Tom Jones in the post from which he resigned, but in the end it was probably decided that a specialist such as Dr. Meanwell is should not be too greatly distracted from that specialty—which is basketball.

Meanwell, in fact, may well be called the Ernest Blood, of intercollegiate basketball. For in his twelve years of coaching, ten in the western conference and two in in the Missouri valley conference, he has turned out nine championship teams, one team that took second place and two fives that finished in third.

This wizard of the court game came to Madison in 1911 and that year his team took fifteen games, losing none His 1912 team won the championship with a loss of one game and the next year his outfit repeated without being defeated in a single game.

In 1914 the Badger quintet lost four games and finished in third place in the Big Ten race but in 1915 came back, losing one game out of twenty-one. In 1916 the five lost three games and finished third.

In 1917 Dr. Meanwell went to the University of Missouri and signalized his advent by winning the championship that year. In 1918 he was in the army, but in 1919 he went back to Missouri and won another championship.

Returning to Wisconsin in 1920 he conducted his team to a tie for the Big Ten championship and in 1921 the Badgers finished in second place. In 1922 and 1923 Wisconsin tied for the conference championship.

Dr. Meanwell's material at Wisconsin has not been first class since his return in 1920 but each year nonetheless his fives have been high class, able to beat team after team composed of better men. Like Blood of Passaic, he is strong for the short pass system and if his fives in the future win fewer championships than formerly it will be because almost all outfits now are copying his methods.

As for Michigan, Little will leave a hole there. In effect he has been the head coach of the football team, although Yost has never been able wholly to live up to his threatened retirement from active coaching. It will be interesting to see what happens at Ann Arbor now.

Adam Walsh of Notre Dame will work three months each year as coach at Santa Clara, San Jose, Calif., and the remainder of the time will be in business in San Francisco. He will make $6000 in return for five years' coaching, which is a very moderate return for his services, one would think.

Stuhldreher really wanted to go to Holy Cross but Cleo O'Donnell wanted a man of greater experience.

Ernest Bearg, of Illinois, has been appointed football coach at Nebraska and will leave Fred Dawson in the happy position of attending to athletic affairs generally.

Glenn Warner is packing up in Pennsylvania to go to Palo Alto for good and all. Stanford elevens will probably be the last contributions of this great coach to football.

DOLAN PASSES UP BASEBALL PROBE

'Cozy' Reported In New York As District Attorney Seeks Evidence

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—According to reports from several sectors of the Broadway front, Mr. Albert "Cozy" Dolan, one of the star witnesses in the official probe of the baseball scandal, has slipped into town without so much as giving the district attorney a formal nod.

The latter, through one of his assistants, George Brothers, is conducting an inquiry into Jimmy O'Connell's ill-fated attempt to bribe Heine Sand, and is very anxious to find out whether Dolan still forgets to remember, as he did when questioned by Judge Landis.

The prosecutor is waiting patiently for Mr. Dolan to respond to his invitation to appear before him. Mr. Dolan has neglected to do so. But several habitues of Broadway's theatrical district claim to have seen Dolan within the last 2 4hours, ensconced in his old haunts, without apparent attempt at concealment.

It is also said that he has had a conference with his attorney, William J. Fallon, but this could not be verified.

There is an air of mystery to the entire business. One story had it that Dolan left his home in Oshkosh, Wis., several days ago. His wife is said to have confessed ignorance of his present whereabouts but intimated, according to the story, that he might be found in Chicago. There the trail apparently ends, unless the Broadway scouts have actually picked up the lost heel prints.

At the district attorney's office doubt was expressed that either O'Connell or Dolan, the only men barred from baseball by the expose, would consent to appear for questioning. If the Landis decision were made to stand up in court of law, both would face prison terms under the New York statutes and therefore might be pardoned a slight degree of reticence about appearing before the district attorney.

But not being under indictment, Dolan can come and go as he pleases around these parts and undoubtedly will be guided in his actions by his attorney.

Kelly Called

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—Summoned by Judge Landis, George Kelly of the New York Giants will leave tomorrow for New York, to appear before the district attorney for questioning in regard to the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal.

Johnny Couch of the Phillies is already on his way to New York.

Whether Jimmy O'Connell has left for the east could not be learned today. He was reported to have disappeared from Boyes Springs, near here, where he was spending a few days. O'Connell refused to answer telegrams or telephone calls for several days, and has been in hiding.

Willie Cunningham of the Boston Braves, who became involved in the investigation of the scandal when he gave a new version of the affair, was on the way to recovery today in a San Francisco hospital, following an operation Tuesday for appendicitis.

Great Field Entered In Track Meet Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—American middle distance runners, beset on every hand by Finland's two aces, Nurmi and Ritola, will make one last desperate effort to force either or both to defeat tonight when the finale of the annual Millrose A. A., carnival is held. Virtually the same field that trailed Nurmi into the wire in the world's record time of 3:03 4-5 in the three-quarter mile special last night will face the man from abroad again tonight.

This time it will be the Wanamaker mile and a half and Nurmi with thirteen records to his credit in as many attempts since coming here is a favorite to win. Even more sensational has been the running of Ritola during recent weeks. On Saturday night he lowered three of the world's records established by Nurmi and last night, in winning the three mile event, bettered two of these marks again. He finished the three miles in 14:04, beating the record he made last Saturday by seven and three-fifths seconds. In addition he passed the two and one-half post in 11:45 4-5 seconds, breaking by two and one-fifth seconds, the mark he established last Saturday for that distance.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The New York Yankees, it is reported, are ready to swallow their pride and make another attempt to buy Joe Boley, shortstop of the Baltimore club.

Jack Dunn of the Orioles came over to New York when the baseball meeting was on in December, at the express invitation of the Yankee management, which wanted to talk about acquiring Boley. Dunn said nothing publicly about it at the time and neither did the Yankee bosses.

Dunn kept so much under cover while he was here that few suspected he even was considering the sale of the man scouts regard as the best shortstop lurking in the bushes. Then, as quietly as he had come, Dunn slipped back to Baltimore—and promptly proceeded to sign Boley up to a contract for the coming season.

Thereupon, he said a few things that indicated how he felt. He said, for instance, that Boley was a little too good for the minor leaguers in major league company. Besides giving the impression that he was nettled, he gave Boley a substantial salary increase to make the player happy.

Finally it developed that Dunn had come to New York all set to part with Doley, but that he pulled up stakes and departed because of what he regarded as cavalier treatment on the part of the Yankee owners. Dunn is a very independent citizen in baseball and always has been. He was so independent that he fought the whole major league crowd on the draft rule and won out until the majors began to buy minor league clubs and leave him in the minority.

If it is true that the Yankees are ready to eat humble pie dished up by Dunn, the meaning is that they have not succeeded in making any deal for a second baseman which would let them swing Ward over to shortstop where he probably would shine as brilliantly as he has at third and second.

The chances are that Scott will be retained by New York, but it appears only too true that he will be superceded by another man at short if he cannot step a little more lively than he did last season. He is as accurate on the infield as he ever was in his life, but he does not get over the ground toward third that he did, according to experts. In his speedy days there never was a shorstop better behind third base than Scott, and any third baseman who could not play ball with him must have been of a very indifferent type.

Boley is a lanky, raw-boned player, who is not as good as Scott in some ways. The one big thing about Boley is his ruggedness. A man who is competent to say something about Boley, because he has seen him play often, tells the writer Boley will last for at least five years, going as well as he is now. That is quite a desirable attribute. If he can play the infield for five years at his present speed, the tea m that gets him will be pretty well furnished around shortstop for some time to come and will not have to be worrying about that important position every spring.

That the Yanks can get Boley without paying a fancy price is improbable, especially in view of what happened in December. That any other club can get him without paying well is equally improbable. There are five teams that could use Boley—but four of them suffer when they think what Jack Dunn wants for him.

BOXING NOTES

Alex Hart of Philadelphia gave Dode Bercot a boxing lesson at the Vernon arena last night in the ten-round main event. Hart substituted for Bobby Barrett. The Seattle logger was willing to slug at all times, but the visitor from Quaker City, with a style peculiar and all his own, kept him away. Hart's fighting did not make a hit with the fans, but the justice of Referee Harry Lee's decision at the close of the ten rounds could not be questioned. Bercot, always aggressive, willing and sometimes anxious, had the majority of the fans rooting for him. Hart, a cool head, gave a scientific exhibition, but his method of doing it failed to win him friends among the fans.

For a boy to travel 3000 miles, train three days and then take the measure of as sturdy a boxer as Bercot is no small feat. Hart outsmarted Bercot. He was up against a tough assignment who was willing to mix at all times. There was no chance for him to knock Dode over, and he had to go the distance in spite of poor condition.

Hart took the shade in the first and second rounds by outboxing Bercot, but in the third the Seattle lad pounded lefts to the body, and Hart appeared to be tiring. Hart had to do some running and stalling in the fourth, but his cleverness gave him an even break. Fast boxing gave Hart the fifth, and they went even in the sixth, when Bercot did a lot of punching and was very aggressive, while Hart was the more clever.

The seventh and eighth rounds went to Bercot. Hart had lost his steam again, while Dode was shooting the left to the head and body.

With two rounds to go Hart could afford to throw more into the scrap. He cinched the ninth by bouncing three clean, but light rights off Dode's chin. Hart's best round was the last. He traded punches every inch of the way, smothering Bercot for the first minute, easing down in the middle of the round, and finishing with a pippin of a rally.

The real bout on the menu was that provided by Julius Jessick and Billy Young. The former took every one of the six rounds and, incidentally, proved that he is one of the best lightweights on the coast. He had the crowd yelling with glee over his display of hitting power and science. Fans want to see Jessick go against the best of them.

Joe Layman took a decision from Billy Kelly after six rounds of ordinary milling. Harry Lee won the nod from Roy Cliffe, and Young Sam Langford got the verdict from Louis Garcia. The colored boy showed some boxing ability.

Hank O'Day, veteran National league umpire, was introduced and bowed nicely.

Two Glendale Teams Battle Monrovia Five

The third Central league game of the season will be played tomorrow when the Glendale lightweights and fleaweights meet the Monrovia "So Big's" in a double header in the Monrovia gym. The lightweights will probably start with Lovell and Harrison at forwards, Captain Archie Neel at center, and Muff and Alvord at guards. The fans who journey to the Foothill city ought to get a lot of kick out of the afternoon as both games should be fast and furious. The fleaweights, who will play in the opener, boast of a real little team with plenty of fight and should give their opponents a good romp on the hardwood.

BASKETBALL RESULTS

The Pasadena lightweights were nosed out by one point yesterday by the Glendale lightweights in a practice game, the score being 18 to 17. Captain Archie Neel was high score man for the locals, getting five points. Lovell added four more and Muff accounted for four. Manuel, right forward for Pasadena, led in the scoring with nine points. Pasadena was leading 11 to 8 at the half but the lightweight Dynamiters came back strong, scoring ten points in the last two quarters.

The local fleaweights did not fare so well against Roosevelt High, the Rough Riders winning 20 to 18. Members of the Glendale team encountered a rough court which handicapped them in taking the ball down the floor.

CASEYS TO PLAY ALHAMBRA HERE

Second Half of Schedule to Open Sunday; Dan O'Leary To Walk at Game

The Glendale Caseys will open the second half of the Southern California K. C. league schedule Sunday at the local ball park on San Fernando road, when Alhambra council invades Glendale. The local team finished at the top of the list in the first half, going undefeated and cinching the title by walloping Santa Ana.

Alhambra finished well up toward the top during the first half, and advance word from the southern city indicates the Alhambra council intends to fight its way to the top round in the second half of the schedule.

"Chief" Butler, who hurled the locals to victory, will not be on the mound next Sunday. Butler has accepted a tempting offer from Phœnix to pitch in the Copper league, and left Glendale last week to take up his new assignment. McDonnell, a newcomer, will pitch for Glendale. McDonnell put in two seasons with the Decatur club of the III league, one season with the West Texas league, and has been hurling good ball in the San Fernando valley this winter.

O'Leary to Walk

Dan O'Leary, 84 years old, but champion walker of the world, will put on a walking exhibition at the ball park Sunday in connection with the game. Dan will circle the bases twelve times in ten minutes, all of which means that he will have to walk around the diamond in approximately fifty seconds each time.

Several months ago Dan put on his walking exhibition at the ball park in the days when the old White Sox club was bringing fame to Glendale. He made the twelve round trips in 9:42 2-5. His ability to cover a lot of ground in a short time by walking shows the results of clean living, constant exercise and proper care of the body.

He has walked across the United States a number of times, visited practically every state capital, and has appeared a number of times in foreign countries. Forty years ago he walked a race against Spencer Robinson, now mayor of Glendale, in Rock Island.

BOWLING SCORES

The Pacific Electrics took three games from the Ajax Tires last night in a Major league match, played at the Recreation alleys. Stephens of the losers held high individual score and also high total, getting 223 in the first game, and a total of 624. The score:

At last the phone company has given me a permanent number—jot it down— Glen. 3727, and remember the new address— 211-A W. Broadway.

That's a queer number for a down stairs or first floor number—but that's it. Find a lot of folk thought I had just "launched" out for myself—NO! fifteen months ago took out brokerage license—but only had desk room with several "brother brokers" in the same office.

Don't forget—give me a ring or drop in, when interested in buying or selling ground or homes or "sich." Write Fire Insurance, too no better company. Lowest rates.

He said there are less than 16,000 of them alive today, and that, through assimilation with the Japanese and because of ill health, particularly among the women, they are rapidly dying out and will soon be extinct.

FIND NATIONAL CAPITAL IS NOT ARID

Dry Agent Reports Stories Of Drinking 'Bouts' No News to Force

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Absolutely nothing new to us," was the casual comment of an officer of the prohibition enforcement unit of the government when asked about the congressional drinking "bouts" discussed so frankly and so freely in the Scott divorce proceedings in Michigan.

"The situation," he continued, "is not much worse in Washington than in other cities of the same size or larger. Drinking in a man's home or apartment is a thing we cannot reach under existing laws and rulings of the court.

"Nevertheless, if the practice continues to grow more and more notorious, you need not be surprised to see Congress—yea, the drinking Congress—pass new laws with teeth enough in them to stop drinking anywhere at any time."

When Thomas R. Marshall was vice-president of the United States and presiding officer of the Senate he is said to have remarked one day that if a secret ballot could be taken in the Senate on the prohibition amendment, not ten votes would be cast for it. That was how he regarded the private convictions of the elder statesmen, judged, perhaps, by what he knew of their habits.

Age Old Joke

It has long been a standing joke here in the capitol that Congressmen do not vote as they drink.

These statements and the "revelations" by Mrs. Scott, however, do not affect the great majority of the national lawmakers, for, in Mrs. Scott's own language, most of the congressmen do not belong to the "up and doing" set. The Scotts moved in what might be termed the "fast young set," in which cocktails and poker parties were a daily occurence. All of official Washington is not given over to that sort of thing. The percentage of scofflaws here, as already stated, is scarcely higher than the average of American cities.

Capital Not Dry

Committees of Congress have been told that the capital is anything but dry and there has been some disposition to criticize the policy of the prohibition officers in this community of shooting at the "sparrows" and letting the bootleg "hawks" get away with the goods.

It has been the policy of the prohibition forces here to arrest young boys and girls for trying to take a drink on the sly at the cabarets and the hotel supper dances. There have been many arrests along this line and much spectacular space in the local newspapers. But so far as damning the incoming stream of liquor it is admitted that virtually no progress has been made.

To Educate People

The prohibition people, in their effort to get Congress to appropriate money for posters and placards of every sort, have shown they are convinced that about the only way to make real headway with enforcement is to appeal directly to the conscience of the people. There is no question but that bootlegging will thrive so long as there is a market for the liquor. Not until the people as a whole, or at least an overwhelming majority of them make up their minds to abstain from liquor will prohibition be reasonably effective.

The late President Harding became convinced of that truth and that is why he became a teetotaler a few short months before his death. He hoped also to set an example to other public servants, including the drinkers in Congress who are getting such unpleasant publicity today from such an unexpected source.

ELECTRICITY IS INCREASING IN BOUNDS

Production Of Power In U. S. Greatest Ever Known With More Plans

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Production of electric power in this country now is about at the highest point ever known. Nevertheless central stations are adding tremendously to their facilities to care for an even greater demand. Power is being produced at the rate of approximately 5,100,000,000 kilowatt hours a month and the corporations engaged in this industry have raised $1,200,000,000 in the last year to add to extensions and additions of generating and distributing equipment. Some of the largest plants ever built will be put into commission during the present year and an enormous volume of new construction will be started.

This volume of production, according to power experts, points to cheaper current, since the increased use of electricity by consumers has flattened out the peak load each station must prepare to meet. This has come about because the year 1924 brought a comparatively small increase in the peak load compared with 1923 when 2,000,000 new customers were added to the lines. The added use of current resulted from increased requirements for transportation, industrial and domestic purposes other than lighting.

Domestic Demand

Extreme importance is attached to domestic use of current by central stations company executives in preparing for the current year. "Nearly a thousand customers a day were added to electric service lines in New York state in the last year," M. S. Sloan, president of the Brooklyn Edison Co. said today, "and ten billion kilowatt hours of electricity were used. In every house equipped for electric service there is a potential saving of years of hard service through use of washing machines, vacuum cleaners and a dozen other modern appliances."

Chas. B. Dubois, president of the Western Electric Co., in discussing the fact that the corporation had broken all records last year by sales totaling $300,000,000, said that much of this business had been due to orders for telephones but that while he expected smaller orders of this sort in 1925, he anticipated a greater volume of business in household equipment, due to the steadily increasing use of electrical products.

To meet some of the anticipated demand, a third 50,000 kilowatt unit of the Detroit Edison Co. will go into commission in February. Construction has started on a 300,000 kilowatt steam electric station by the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. The first 250,000 kilovolt-amperes unit of the Richmond station of the Philadelphia Electric Co. will be put in operation in 1925.

Other Projects

Among other large steam electric projects on which work is progressing are the new 700,000 kilovolt-amperes station of the New York Edison Co., the Philo, Ohio, station of the American Gas and Electric Co. rated at 300,000 kva. The Commonwealth Edison station at Chicago, with a capacity of 600,000 kva and the Long Beach, California plant of the Southern California Edison Co.

Virtually every section of the nation will have new hydro-electric plants this year. The Wilson Dam plant at Muscle Shoals will be finished in September. Two other tremendous plants on which work will be pushed are the San Joaquin river project of the Southern California Edison Co. and the Conowingo dam of the Susquehanna Power Company in Maryland.

The building of these and other plants has necessitated the development of many electrical engineering features. Among these are unique meters for measuring use of current for different purposes including the kilovolt-ampere meter and the watt hour meter. New methods of driving steel mills, paper mills, and of drilling for oil by electricity have been devised. Elevator equipment has been perfected which will allow of a speed of one thousand feet a minute. The domestic flat iron has not been neglected and may now have its heat regulated automatically by thermostatic control.
